Declaration of universally binding status

This booklet includes the following Collective Agreements in the Metalektro:
• Basic 2018/2020;
• For Senior Staff 2018/2020; and

Since the majority of provisions in this collective agreement have been declared to be universally binding, they apply to all employers and employees who, when the ‘Declaration of universally binding status’ [Algemeen verbindend verklaring: AVV] comes into force or during the period of these provisions being deemed to be universally binding, fall within their scope.

The parties to the collective agreement have agreed that certain provisions will not be deemed to be universally binding; the specified provisions then only apply to organised employers and their employees. The following provisions apply to the Collective Agreement in the Metalektro: Basic 2018/2020: 1.1.4(i) and (k), 1.3.1, 2.1.3(b), 2.4, 3.1.2, 3.5.1(b), 3.6.3, 3.7.4, 3.10, 4.6.1(b) and 4.6.2(b), 6.5, 6.6.2, 6.6.3, 6.8.2, 6.8.3, 6.10.3, 7.1, 7.3 (def. trade unions and employers’ association), 7.6, 7.7, 7.8 and 7.9.

The following provisions apply to the Collective Agreement in the Metalektro: Senior Staff 2018/2020: 1.2.2(g) and (k), 1.4.1, 1.6, 2.1.2, 3.1.1, 3.6, 4.6, 6.3, 6.4, 6.8.3, 7.1, 7.3 (def. trade unions and employers’ association), 7.6, and 7.7.

Furthermore, the UAW (task implementation) department of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Employment also deems that certain provisions do not fall under the ‘Declaration of universally binding status’; here, too, the specified provisions then only apply to organised employers and their employees. Examples of provisions of the collective agreement that, by their nature, do not fall under the ‘Declaration of universally binding status’ are those regarding pensions, reinsurance of employers’ excess, and provisions not relating to labour matters.

The government’s published decision on the issuing of a ‘Declaration of universally binding status’ states which provisions fall within the scope of said declaration; this decision is published by the UAW (task implementation) department of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Employment at the websites www.szw.nl (in Dutch) and www.staatscourant.nl (Dutch government gazette; in Dutch).
The ‘Declaration of universally binding status’ comes into effect on the second day after said decision is published in the Dutch government gazette [Staatscourant] or on the date specified in the decision and remains in effect until no later than the end date of the collective agreement.
Notes to reading this collective agreement

Collective agreements have been restructured

- The Collective Agreements in the Metalektro (Metalworking and Electrical Engineering Industry), i.e. the Basic Collective Agreement, the Collective Agreement for Senior Staff, and the Collective Agreement on Labour Market Policy and Vocational Training have been restructured and modified to improve accessibility and readability.
- The adjustments made involve rearranging text both within and between sections to make the arrangement of text more logical. The language used has been updated and simplified where possible without affecting the substance of the provisions of the collective agreement.
- The terms ‘article’ and ‘paragraph’ are no longer used in the new arrangement: these have been replaced by a simple numbering system according to the hierarchical level within the article (with, for example, 1 being further divided into 1.1, 1.1.1, etc.). For points under the lowest sub-section of an article, letters are used where necessary.
- The reader can find the relevant provisions quickly using the Table of Contents at the beginning and the Index at the end. Annex I to the Basic Collective Agreement and Annex C to the Collective Agreement for Senior Staff are aids to allow the reader to compare the current version with the collective agreement for 2015/2018.

Provisions displayed in regular type/bold type

- Within the framework of this collective agreement, a Basic Collective Agreement in the Metalektro, hereinafter called an ‘MB Collective Agreement’ (i.e. Metalektro B regulations collective agreement), can be concluded at group, company, industry, or regional level. See 7.5 of the Basic Collective Agreement.
- The provisions of this collective agreement are divided into ‘A-provisions’ (in bold type) and ‘B-provisions’ (regular type). The A-provisions of a MB Collective Agreement may only be deviated from if the departure is to the advantage of the employees.

Collective Agreement for Senior Staff

- Provisions of the Collective Agreement for Senior Staff that are identical to those of the Basic Collective Agreement have been omitted from this booklet to improve readability. This booklet does, however, include all provisions specific to the Collective Agreement for Senior Staff and those that only vary from the Basic Collective Agreement in terms of references to particular articles.

• The full, unabridged text of the Collective Agreement for Senior Staff has been registered with the Ministry of Social Affairs and Employment and has been proposed to come under the ‘Declaration of universally binding status’.

The collective agreement and laws

• The collective agreement occasionally refers to a particular law; the full text of these laws can be found (in Dutch) at www.overheid.nl.

• The website www.caometalektro.nl provides an explanation (in Dutch) of certain provisions of the collective agreement and the laws that have a bearing on these.

More information

If you have any questions regarding this collective agreement, you can contact one of the parties to the collective agreement. You can read more (in Dutch) about the financing schemes that form part of this collective agreement at the website of industry vocational centre A+O Metalektro: www.ao-metalektro.nl.

ROM database

The collective agreements are also available (in Dutch) for viewing on the website of ROM (the Consultative Council in the Metalektro) at www.caometalektro.nl. Individual provisions of the collective agreement can be viewed by clicking the menu at the top of this site and selecting ‘Cao bepalingen’ (or selecting ‘Cao bepalingen’ at the bottom of the page) and then selecting the relevant collective agreement. The site allows the user to view, select and print provisions of the collective agreement as desired. It can also be seen on this site which articles relate to each other.

COLLECTIVE AGREEMENT IN THE METALEKTRO 2018/2020 BASIC
Parties to the collective agreement

This collective agreement has been agreed between:

1. FME, the Dutch employers’ organisation in the technology industry, hereinafter referred to as the ‘employers’ association’, and
2. FNV Metaal,
3. CNV Vakmensen,
4. De Unie,
   with parties 2 to 4 hereinafter referred to jointly as the ‘trade unions’.

Introduction

A. Nature and operation of this collective agreement

The parties to this collective agreement explain below the nature of this collective agreement and present a number of rules for ensuring that the nature of this agreement is preserved and that it operates as intended.

1. The parties to this collective agreement have signed this agreement with the aim of promoting good social relationships in the Metalektro, promoting the welfare of the employees in the company, and increasing the production and productivity in the industry in general.

2. The parties to this collective agreement are aware, however, that many matters concerning labour relations cannot be regulated in the collective agreement but rather must be settled in the individual company, either by the employer or between the employer and the trade unions or the works council, according to the matter to be dealt with.

3. In this respect both recognise the role and responsibilities of the employer and the trade unions. On the one hand, the trade unions acknowledge that within the current social structure only the employer is responsible for determining corporate policy and carries responsibility for implementing it, while on the other hand, the employers’ association and its members recognise the trade unions as independent representatives of their members, both at individual and collective level. The trade unions can only carry out this task properly if they are as well informed as possible about matters within the company where the interests of employees are at stake. It is also essential that they have good contact with their members in the company. For these reasons, the members of the employers’ association will keep the trade unions as well informed as possible about matters that are important for members of the trade unions.

4. It is essential that consultations be held in good time and in good faith if the intentions of this collective agreement are to be met.

5. The parties to this collective agreement have included a mediation procedure in the collective agreement to be used in the event that it prove impossible to reach agreement through good consultation; the intention is that the parties will only resort to this procedure in very exceptional cases.
6. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that companies, in consultation with the works council, draw up a complaints procedure and that this include the provision that an employee may choose a person to represent him or her. Once the complaint has been handled through the company procedure, it can still be brought before the trade union for resolution.

7. The parties to this collective agreement reject discrimination in employment and are willing to endeavour to promote equal opportunities for men and women at the workplace. Women’s participation in training courses will be promoted. The parties to this collective agreement will periodically review the progress being made in creating equal opportunities.

8. The parties to this collective agreement endorse the principle that women and men with the same level of relevant education/training and experience should receive equal pay for performing the same job.

9. The parties to this collective agreement are committed to promoting an ‘à la carte conditions of employment plan’ within the company.

B. Employment

The parties to this collective agreement feel that, in light of the economic situation, it is important that attention be paid both to the qualitative and quantitative aspects of employment in the industry.

1. At industry level (within the Consultative Council in the Metalektro; hereinafter also referred to by its Dutch initialism ‘ROM’) topics of importance to the industry and/or the major sectors within the industry will be discussed. Consultations will take place with the training organisations active within the industry regarding setting up programmes to train students for difficult-to-fill vacancies and to train or retrain employees who are difficult to place.

2. To stimulate the entry of sufficient numbers of high-quality employees, students are being trained within the Metalektro on the basis of an apprenticeship contract (professional practical skills course of study: BBL). This learning pathway includes practical, on-the-job training, which must be a close fit with the requirements the student will be expected to meet once employed. It goes without saying that the intention is not to use the practical component to address fluctuations in the supply of work.
3. At company level, the employer and the trade unions may hold talks on all aspects of employment.

4. When moves to increase productivity arise at the company, the parties to this collective agreement will pay this the greatest possible attention and cooperate in these endeavours as much as possible.

5. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that companies pay additional attention to developing an integrated policy on older employees and to the issues faced by disabled and foreign employees.

6. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that employers and employees do all they can to avoid conflicts arising from questions of conscience, for example by jointly discussing the matter concerned as soon as possible after the employee has reported the situation giving rise to his or her objection on the basis of conscience.

C. Sickness and incapacity for work

The parties to this collective agreement regard sickness absence as a continuing cause for concern. They believe that sickness absence that arises from the work should, in first instance, be addressed at company level. To this end, they recommend that the company develop a prevention policy.

D. In-house environmental management

The parties to this collective agreement recommend that the company introduce an in house environmental management system.

E. Inappropriate behaviour policy

The parties to this collective agreement recommend that a policy to deal with inappropriate behaviour in the workplace be introduced at company level.

F. Integrated job grading system (ISF system)

The parties to this collective agreement have introduced the Integrated Job Grading System (using its Dutch initialism also referred to herein as the ‘ISF system’) in this collective agreement to replace the job list with effect from 1 January 2008.
1. Contract of employment

1.1 start of the contract of employment

1.1.1 Fixed term or permanent contract of employment

The employer and employee may conclude a fixed term or a permanent contract of employment.

1.1.2 Probationary period

A probationary period will only be in effect if this has been agreed in writing between the employer and employee.

1.1.3 Written agreements

The employer will provide the employee with a written contract of employment within one month of the employee commencing work. The employer may also provide written confirmation of the agreements made. In the event of any changes to the agreements reached, the employer will confirm these in writing as well.

1.1.4 Details to be recorded

The written contract of employment or confirmation must contain at least the following information:

a. the name and address of both the employer and employee;

b. the start date of employment; if the contract is for a fixed term, the duration of the contract;

c. the job title;

d. the work location or locations;

e. the contracted working hours;

f. the salary per month, period, or week;

g. the salary group and the number of years in the position allocated to the employee;

h. the number of scheduled paid hours off and amount of annual leave per year;

i. whether the employee will participate in a pension scheme and, if so, which one;

j. the period of notice to be observed by the employer and employee or the method of calculating these periods;

k. the collective agreement that applies.
1.2 Prior work under contract with an employment agency

1.2.1 One single fixed term contract of employment

Contrary to Article 7:668a of the Dutch Civil Code, consecutive contracts of employment via a temporary employment agency will be deemed to be a single fixed term contract of employment where the conditions stated under 1.2.2 are met.

1.2.2 Conditions

The provision stated under 1.2.1 applies to an employee:

a. who worked as an agency worker for the employer directly prior to entering employment with this employer under a contract of employment; and

b. who became ill while being employed by the temporary employment agency; and

c. whose contract with the temporary employment agency was terminated strictly due to the employee’s sickness; and

d. who, after recovering from the sickness, signed a new contract with the temporary employment agency; and

e. whose period of employment with the employer via the temporary employment agency was only interrupted by the period of sickness.

1.3 Changing the contracted hours of employment

1.3.1 Fewer working hours than contracted

Under the Dutch Flexible Work Act [Wet flexibel werken], the employee is entitled to work fewer hours than contracted. Contrary to the provisions of this act, under this collective agreement the employee can also invoke this right:

a. from the first day of employment;

b. even if the employer has fewer than 10 employees.
1.3.2 More working hours than contracted

Under the Dutch Flexible Work Act, the employee is also entitled to work more hours than contracted. However, contrary to the provisions of Article 2 of this act, the employee may only increase the number of working hours in consultation with the employer. If the employer rejects the employee's proposal to increase the working hours, the employer will inform the employee in writing, stating the reasons for this decision.

1.4 Full-time and part-time work

1.4.1 General rule

The provisions of this collective agreement are based on the assumption of full-time employment. With regard to an employee who works part time, the provisions of this collective agreement apply proportionately to the number of hours the employee works.

1.4.2 Exceptions

If an employee works part time, the following provisions of this collective agreement apply in full, rather than proportionately to the number of hours the employee works:

a. short-term sickness absence (4.4);
b. special leave for employees who are union members (4.6);
c. in-situ work: compensation of additional travel time, and additional travel and accommodation costs (3.7.7).

1.4.3 Working additional hours

If a part-time employee works more hours than specified in their contract of employment, the employee will accrue annual leave entitlement and scheduled paid hours off over these additional hours. In consultation between the employer and the employee, this additional leave entitlement or additional scheduled paid hours off may be paid out in whole or in part.
Notes to 1.4
• If a part-time employee works additional hours at the request of the employer, the employee will receive over these additional hours, up to the Basic Work Year:
  - a proportionate amount of annual leave;
  - a proportionate number of scheduled paid hours off;
  - holiday pay amounting to 8% of the per-hour earnings.
• The employer will also pay the employee a sum equal to the employer’s share in the pension contributions for these extra hours worked.

1.5 End of the contract of employment

1.5.1 Termination

Termination of a permanent contract of employment, whether by the employer or the employee, must be done in writing and in such a way that the employment terminates at the end of a calendar month.

Notes to 1.5.1
If an employee was 45 years or older on the date that the Dutch Flexibility and Security Act came into force (1 January 1999) and a longer period of notice applied to this employee than that stated in the act, the longer period of notice will continue to apply to this employee as long as he or she remains in the service of the same employer.

1.5.2 State retirement age

When an employee reaches the Dutch state retirement age the contract of employment will terminate without notice of termination being required.

1.5.3 Settling annual leave and scheduled paid hours off

At the end of employment, the employer will settle, in time or cash, any annual leave or scheduled paid hours off taken by the employee in excess of entitlement or still due to the employee.
2. Working hours

2.1 Work schedule / Work schedule

2.1.1 Drawing up the work schedule

a. After consulting the employee the employer draws up the work schedule that applies to that employee.
b. The employer will make the schedule available to the employee at least 14 days in advance of the period concerned, though the employer may agree a different period with the works council.

c. When re-establishing the starting and finishing times in work schedules for day shifts on Monday to Friday, employers will in principle not set the starting time before 07:00 or finishing time after 19:00.

2.1.2 Basic principles / Basic principles

a. The employer will as far as possible avoid the situation in which the employee is required to work on Saturday, Sunday, or public holidays recognised in the collective agreement. This applies both while drawing up the work schedule and when assigning special work activities.
b. With regard to employees working shifts, the provision of (a) above will be deemed to have been satisfied if the employee has not performed any work during a 24-hour period of which at least 18 consecutive hours coincide with the public holiday.

2.1.3 Consultations with the trade unions

a. If the employer intends to extend the standard working hours in the working hours policy to more than 8.5 hours, the employer will first consult with the trade unions on this matter.
b. An employer who wishes to introduce a working hours policy that diverges from the standards set out in the Working Hours Act that applied until 1 November 2007 and the standards of the Working Hours Decrees based on that act must first reach agreement on that policy with the trade unions.
2.2 Temporary 4-day work week

2.2.1 Use of unused leave/hours

a. An employee who works full time may temporarily work 4 days per week by using their unused annual leave entitlement and scheduled paid hours off, unused excess hours and/or unused overtime hours.

b. The employer will offer this possibility at the employee’s request.

c. The employer and employee will arrange the particulars of the 4-day workweek in good consultation.

Examples of hours that may be applied are any unused hours from the additional leave for older employees and annual leave entitlement left over from recent years.
Examples of hours that may not be applied are hours that have already been scheduled in, hours that have been included in a work schedule (like for shift work), mandatory holidays/scheduled paid hours off agreed in a collective agreement, the annual personal consecutive period of annual leave, and hours from an hour bank agreed with the works council or trade union.

2.2.2 Reason to refuse

a. The employer may refuse the employee’s request if this would be contrary to the company’s interest.

b. If the request will be refused, the employer must inform the employee of this within 4 weeks stating the reasons for this decision.

2.2.3 Company scheme

The provisions of 2.2.1(a) and (b) and 2.2.2 can be developed further in a company scheme.
2.3 Shift work

2.3.1 Introducing shift work

The employer will not introduce a new shift system for the entire company or for one or more departments until the trade unions have consented to this.

2.3.2 Basic principles

An employee is obliged to work in shifts unless he or she:

a. is 55 or older and has not worked in shifts since the age of 50;
b. is not capable of working in shifts for reasons of health. In the event of a dispute about the medical capacity of the employee, a medical certificate must be submitted, if possible with the involvement of the occupational health physician.

Recommendation re 2.3.2

If an employee demonstrates that his or her personal circumstances or family situation make performing shift work particularly onerous, the parties to this collective agreement advise the employer to seriously bear this in mind.

2.3.3 Night shift: reducing workload

a. The employer will, in consultation with the works council, draw up a plan to ensure that the workload of working night shifts diminishes in line with the employee’s increasing age.
b. The employer is not obliged to reduce the workload if in all reasonableness this cannot be required.

Notes to 2.3.3 a

By reducing the number of night shifts for example.

1 The allowance paid for shift work is set out in 3.7.3.
2 The parties to this collective agreement consider it important to limit overtime during night shifts. At the same time, the parties recognise that overtime may be necessary, for instance, for handing over work in connection with emergency situations.
2.4 Continuous shift work system

Where work is performed under a continuous shift work system (more than three shifts), the employer will draw up a working hours policy in consultation with the works council.

2.5 On-call duty

2.5.1 Introducing on-call duty

An employer who wishes to introduce on-call duty must first set up a scheme for this in consultation with the trade unions and works council.

2.5.2 Basic principles

a. The on-call duty scheme sets out arrangements concerning:
   - the on-call pay per 24-hour period;
   - compensation for travel and telephone costs;
   - the rest period an employee is entitled to if, while on on-call duty, the employee has been called in to work between 00:00 and 05:00.

b. The provisions of this collective agreement concerning overtime and excess hours worked apply to on-call duty.

Recommendation re 2.5

The parties to this collective agreement advise the employer to also include in an on-call duty scheme arrangements regarding:
- compensation of travel time in time or money;
- a rest period to be taken after an on-call employee has been called in to work between 00:00 and 06:00 to be taken immediately after the call-up, or arrangements that, within the framework of the Working Hours Act, in some other way take account of the strain that working on call has on an employee;
- regular evaluation of the on-call scheme and amending this to take account of changing circumstances.

3 The allowance paid for working under a continuous shift work system is set out in 3.7.4.
2.6 Overtime\textsuperscript{4, 5}

2.6.1 Basic principles

a. The employee is obliged to work overtime:
   • if the employer has informed the works council (in advance if possible) of the assignment to work overtime; and
   • if the employee does not fall under the exceptions stated under b and c below.

b. The employee is not obliged to work overtime if the employee:
   • is younger than 18 years;
   • was 55 or older on 1 January 2017;
   • is assigned to work overtime on a day when the employee has shorter working hours than those of employees in similar posts at the company;
   • is not capable of working overtime for reasons of health. In the event of a dispute about the medical capacity of the employee, a medical certificate must be submitted, if possible with the involvement of the occupational health physician.

c. If, on or after 1 January 2017, the employee reaches the age of 56, the obligation to work overtime is restricted in regard to two aspects:
   • the employee is only obliged to work five hours of overtime per four-week period; and
   • the employee does not have to work overtime during a night shift.

4 The arrangements concerning time in lieu / compensation / premium for working overtime is set out in 3.7.2.
5 Article 27 of the Works Council Act applies in the event of changes to the working hours policy.
2.6.2 Time off after working overtime

a. The employee will not be required to work again for a period of eleven hours after the end of the overtime if the overtime starts before or at midnight and:
   • the employee already worked a regular shift that day; or
   • that day is a Sunday or public holiday.
b. The employer may reduce these eleven hours to eight hours once in each period of 7 x 24 hours.
c. Insofar as these eleven or eight hours fall within the normal working hours they will be regarded as hours worked.

2.6.3 Religious day of rest and holidays

In assigning overtime, the employer will show serious consideration for the significant weekly day of rest and religious holidays according to the employee’s religious beliefs.

2.6.4 Role of the trade unions

If the trade unions request this, the employer will consult with them concerning overtime.

Recommendation re 2.6

The parties to this collective agreement advise the employer to:
• limit overtime where possible;
• if an employee demonstrates that his or her personal circumstances or family situation make working overtime particularly onerous, seriously bear this in mind when assigning mandatory overtime;
• avoid assigning overtime on Saturday, Sunday, or public holidays.
3. Remuneration

3.1 Job classification

3.1.1 Options

a. The employee uses a form of job classification to group each job performed at the company into one of the salary groups A to K.

b. When introducing a form of job classification the employer may opt for the Integrated Job Grading System (also called the ‘ISF system’; see Annex G) or one of the systems specified in Annex H, or may otherwise use an instrument derived from the Integrated Job Grading System or a system from Annex H. If the employer does not specifically select one of these options, the Integrated Job Grading System must be used by default.

c. An employer who introduces a different form of job classification than those referred to in 3.1.1(b) must submit the choice for approval to the Consultative Council in the Metalektro (ROM). ROM will notify the employer of its decision within one month of receipt of the request for approval.

3.1.2 Forms of job classification other than the Integrated Job Grading System

a. If the employer introduces a form of job classification other than the Integrated Job Grading System:
   • the employer must implement a complaints procedure that is equivalent to the complaints procedure described in Article IV of Annex G; and
   • the employer must inform the employees of the tasks and responsibilities of the system holder, the purpose and effect of the selected form of job classification, and the appeals procedure.

b. If the employer introduces or changes a salary system as a result of applying a form of job classification other than the Integrated Job Grading System, the employer must do this in consultation with the employers’ association and the trade unions.
3.1.3 Income guarantees with the introduction of a different form of job classification

a. If, after introducing the Integrated Job Grading System (ISF), the ISF + Working Conditions System (SAO), or another form of job classification, the total amount of the monthly earnings and any hardship allowance for difficult working conditions the employee receives would end up being less than what he or she originally received, the employee is entitled to receive the original total amount. If the employee is 55 or older, the original amount the employee receives must be adjusted in line with the general salary adjustments as stated in this collective agreement.

b. If, after introducing a form of job classification other than the ISF or the ISF + SAO, the salary the employee receives in that position is less than what he or she originally received, for as long as this is the case the conditions of employment attached to the salary will be based on the original salary.

3.1.4 Job classification procedure

a. The employer will make a list of the jobs in the company and their classification in a salary group.

b. The employer will compile the job classification only after the system owner has approved the said list of jobs.

c. The employer will then assign the jobs occurring in the company to salary groups in consultation with the works council.

3.1.5 Rights of the employee

a. Besides the written employment contract (or confirmation of the agreements made) as referred to in 1.1, the employer will provide the employee with a written job description or a statement for the reason for the job classification. A new written statement will be issued whenever a job classification is revised.

b. Complaints from employees regarding their classification will be handled in accordance with an appeals procedure in the company (see 3.1.2 and Annex G).

6 This list may be a list of all jobs, a list with series of jobs, or a list with reference jobs (key positions), with their classification in salary groups.
3.2 Determining salary group and personal minimum monthly earnings

3.2.1 Placement in a salary group

a. Based on the work performed, the employer will classify the employee in one of the salary groups A to K.

b. Instead of classifying on the basis of job performed, a young employee aged 15 to 21 may also be classified according to his or her level of education. From 1 July 2019 this applies to an employee aged 15 to 20 years. In this case, the employee will be classified in a salary group I to III according to the table following.

3.2.2 Changes to salary group

a. If the employer places the employee in a higher salary group, when considering the job salary to be agreed and/or the pay rise to be agreed, the employer will take into account the previous monthly earnings and what is considered proportionally reasonable in the company.

b. Employees who will be performing a job which is classified in a higher salary group will be paid the salary that applies for the higher salary group (where applicable, the personal minimum salary) no earlier than one month after starting in the new position and no later than two months from that time. In the interim, the employee will continue receiving the salary he or she earned in the previous position. This provision does not apply if the employee is reinstated by the employer to his or her former position after a predetermined period or at the end of a particular assignment.

d. Following the period as stated in 3.2.2.c, for the relevant period shown in the table below the employee will continue to receive the salary earned in the previous position if the employee had been employed by the employer for at least five years without interruption at the time of the change in position. This provisions stated in (c) and (d) do not apply if the employee returns to his or her former position after a predetermined period or at the end of a particular assignment.

e. An employee aged 60 or older who will be performing a job which is classified in a lower salary group will continue to be paid the salary they earned in their previous job

3.2.3 Influence of age and years in position

a. If the employee has not yet reached the Dutch state retirement age, the employer will agree a salary with the employee that is at least equal to the personal minimum monthly earnings that applies to that employee according to the provisions of 3.3.
b. The monthly earnings depend on:
   • the salary group into which the employee is placed;
   • the age of the employee or the number of years in the position.

3.2.4 Age reference dates

The following reference dates apply when determining the minimum monthly earnings:
a. during the first half of the calendar year: the employee’s age on 1 April;
b. during the second half of the calendar year: the employee’s age on 1 October.

3.2.5 Personal minimum salary at 0 years in position

a. If the employee has been placed in salary group A to H, once the employee reaches the age of 22 (at the latest), he or she is entitled to receive the personal minimum salary that applies to 0 years in position for the salary group concerned. From the age of 23, the employee is entitled to be placed in the appropriate salary group. From 1 July 2019 the age threshold referred to in this provision will be lowered to 21 and 22 respectively.
b. If the employee is placed in salary group J or K, from the moment the employee is placed in this group the personal minimum salary at 0 years in position will apply, regardless of age.

3.2.6 Personal minimum job salary at maximum years in position

The following table shows when the employee is entitled to receive the personal minimum job salary linked to the maximum number of years in position per salary group.

3.3 Salary tables / Salary tables

• Under an MB Collective Agreement, the employer can deviate from the system of higher personal minimum monthly earnings for more years in the position. If the 10 salary groups specified in 3.3.1 are maintained, the lowest and highest amount in each of the 10 salary groups must be respected.

• Under an MB Collective Agreement, the employer can deviate (as well) from the system of using 10 salary groups, in which case the relationship between the highest and the lowest amount for the salary groups the employer opts to use must be determined in relation to the highest and lowest amount for the salary groups specified in 3.3.1.

• The salary system used by the company will, in general, be aligned to the conditions and relations existing in that company. This may mean that other starting ages and/or number of years in a position may be used than those specified in 3.2.5 and 3.2.6; these can be either higher or lower ages and more or fewer years in the position. The personal minimum monthly earnings specified in 3.3.1 apply as the bottom threshold however.

3.3.4 Regularly switching jobs

If the employee regularly performs different jobs, they will be given the personal minimum monthly earnings for the salary group in which the job carrying the highest ranking has been classified.
3.4 Salary adjustments during the course of this collective agreement

3.4.1 Pay rises

The following table shows on which dates and by how much the employee's actual salary will be increased. These pay rises have already been included in the salary tables in this section of the collective agreement.

3.4.2 Temporary agency staff

The pay rises stated in 3.4.1 apply to temporary agency staff as well; it is up to the employer to check that the temporary agency staff are given these rises.

3.4.3 Setting the pay rise off against a previous rise

If the employer voluntarily increased an employee’s actual salary in advance of this collective agreement, the employer may offset the rise already given against the rise that applies from February 2019. The same applies to an advance on the pay rise that was provided voluntarily. This article will lapse at the end of the collective agreement.
3.5 Company salary systems

3.5.1 Prerequisites

a. If the employer operates a salary system specific to that company, the employer must observe the provisions of 3.1.1, 3.1.4, 3.1.5, 3.2.1 and 3.6.1(a). The personal minimum monthly earnings specified in 3.3.1 must be observed as the lower threshold, though the employer may deviate from the ages and number of years in position specified therein.

b. When a salary system is either to be introduced or radically revised, the employer must consult with the employers' association and the trade unions at an early stage, providing these parties the required information for the sake of this consultation. The employer will base the salary scales on the company’s existing payment levels.

3.5.2 ISF transition clause

If, as a result of the application of the Integrated Job Grading System (ISF), a salary system is introduced or amended, this will be done in consultation between the employer and the trade unions and employers' association.

Notes to 3.5

- In this context a salary system is defined as:
  - salary scales drawn up using a system of rules that cover determining individual job salaries on the basis of factors such as salary group classification, age, and years in position, and possibly in combination with a remuneration system (salary differentiation);
  - a system of rules that makes up part of the labour relationship between employer and employee, on both a collective and individual basis.
- Either the employer or the trade unions may take the initiative to hold talks on introducing or radically changing a salary system.
3.6 Non-standard salaries

3.6.1 Labour market projects

a. The employer may, contrary to the provisions of 3.2.1, allocate employees who are in a work experience post as part of a work experience project or who are taking part in another labour market project to a ‘leg-up’ salary group for a period of one year after this has been agreed with the trade unions. The leg-up salary group is equivalent to the statutory minimum wage.
b. If the employee comes under the wage cost subsidy target group of the Participation Act, that employee’s salary will be set at an amount equivalent to between 100% and 120% of the statutory minimum wage. If the employee works full time in a job classified in the company, he or she will move on to the salary tables specified in 3.3. For posts not classified in the company but which are filled full-time an appropriate salary will be determined.

3.6.2 Refresher training and retraining

a. The provisions of 3.3.1 will not apply for three months for employees who are given refresher training on commencing employment. Refresher training is defined as a course designed to enable an employee to refresh a skill related to a particular job which the employee being trained already performed, regardless of whether this employee was formerly employed under a contract of employment or was self-employed.
b. If the employee starts the retraining course right at the start of employment with the company, the provisions of 3.3.1 do not apply for the first six months; if the retraining concerns a job classified in one of the salary groups D, E or F, the term will be twelve months instead of six. Retraining is defined as a course to train an employee to fill a position other than the one he or she has already held, regardless of whether this employee was formerly employed under a contract of employment or was self-employed.

The provisions of this article are not intended to result in these employees receiving an income lower than, for example, that for the salary scale for salary group A. The intention is that the salary will gradually rise to the appropriate salary according to the progress made in the refresher training or retraining course.
3.6.3 Working after reaching the state retirement age

a. If an employee who has reached Dutch state retirement age enters into a new employment relationship at the company, he or she will be paid the salary that is customary at the company for the job to be performed.
b. This salary can be reduced by the amount of social insurance contributions and pension contributions the employee is no longer required to pay.

Notes to 3.6.3 b
The employer can deposit this amount into a savings account, the contents of which can be paid to the employee at the end of the contract of employment. With the consent of the employee, this amount can also be used to arrange payments from a company pension fund.
3.7 Premiums and compensation / Premiums and compensation

3.7.1 Holiday pay

a. Accrual period and payment Between 1 July and 30 June each year the employee accrues holiday pay, which the employer must pay out by no later than on the 1 July immediately following this period.

b. Amount of holiday pay
   For each month in service the employee accrues 8% holiday pay over the monthly earnings, calculated based on the earnings in June of the accrual period. If the contract of employment is terminated before 1 June, the holiday pay will be calculated based on the last full month’s earnings.

c. In the event of regular shift work
   If an employee regularly works or has worked in shifts, the holiday pay will be increased by an amount equal to 8% of the shift premiums - as referred to in 3.7.3(a) and (b) - the employee has earned since 1 July of the previous year.

d. Sales representatives
   For sales representatives, for each month in service the employee accrues 8% holiday pay over the monthly salary - calculated based on the salary in June of the accrual period - and the employee’s average monthly commission received over the accrual period. If the contract of employment is terminated before 1 June, the holiday pay will be calculated based on the last full month’s salary and the employee’s average monthly commission over the last 12 months.

   When calculating holiday pay for a sales representative, the upper threshold is 8% of three times the statutory minimum wage that applies on 30 June of the then current calendar year, with the understanding that if 8% of the salary - based on the salary for June of that year - comes to a higher amount for every month of employment between 1 July and 30 June (inclusive), the higher amount applies.

e. Minimum holiday pay
   The following table shows the lower threshold for the holiday pay per month of employment with the company of an employee aged 22 or older - 21 or older from 1 July 2019 - who is working full time.

Table: Minimum holiday pay per month for a full-time employee aged 22 years or older (21 years of older from 1 July 2019)

f. In the event of incapacity for work For a maximum of two years from the first day an employee is declared incapacitated for work, the employee is entitled to receive holiday pay, subject to deduction of any holiday pay he or she receives under any social security benefits.

g. No holiday pay
   The employer is not required to pay holiday pay over a period during which the employee has not worked and is not entitled to receive wages.

3.7.2 Excess hours and overtime: time in lieu, payment in cash, and premium

a. Time in lieu
   At a time agreed between the employer and employee, the employee will be given time in lieu for each excess hour or hour of overtime worked, to be taken when the operational situation allows for this and when the employee would normally be scheduled to work. The time in lieu will be taken in at least half days according to the shifts recorded on the schedule, preferably within the same quarter in which the excess hours and/or overtime was accrued.

b. Payment in cash
   The employer and employee may also agree payment in cash - at the employee’s normal hourly wage - for the excess hours or overtime.

c. Excess hours remaining at the end of the calendar
   Any excess hours which have not been offset by time in lieu or been paid out by the end of the calendar year will be carried over to the next calendar year and accredited to the employee as scheduled paid hours off. However, the employer may, in consultation with the employee, also pay out half of the uncompensated hours at a rate of 0.6% of the monthly earnings per paid-out hour
   (i.e. 103.4% of the hourly earnings)\(^7\). The other half of the outstanding hours are accredited to the employee in the form of additional scheduled paid hours off to be taken that year.

d. Overtime premium For certain hours of overtime, the employee will receive a premium over and above the time in lieu or payment in cash, as shown in the table following.

\(^7\) This percentage applies to hourly earnings that are 0.58% of the monthly earnings.

* This percentage applies to hourly earnings that are 0.58% of the monthly earnings.
 The premium also applies to overtime that is separated from the normal working hours by a statutory rest period or a rest period based on local conditions.
 i.e. public holidays recognised in the collective agreement

e. No time in lieu, payment in cash, or premium
   - If the overtime occurs while concluding normal daily duties at the end of the normal working hours, only happens incidentally, and does not last longer than half an hour, no payment in cash, time in lieu or premium will be owed for this overtime. If the activities go on for a longer time, this time must be compensated for the entire duration however.
   - No payment in cash, time in lieu or premium will be owing for catch-up hours, i.e. overtime worked outside the normal working hours and in excess of the employee’s scheduled hours where this time is used by the employee to catch up:
     - on work he or she was unable to do due to an interruption in operations;
     - for lost time due to a pre-planned event during which the employee, along with all employees in the company or in one or more departments, did not or will not be working, except if this occurs on a Sunday or public holiday recognised in the collective agreement. The employer may designate certain working hours as catch-up hours as specified above in consultation with the works council.
     - If the catch-up hours are for time lost due to inclement weather, the employee will not be entitled to compensation for a maximum of three days per winter season.

f. Overtime under a continuous shift work system
   Where work is performed under a continuous shift work system (more than three shifts), the employer will draw up an overtime policy after consulting with the works council and in consultation with the trade unions.

Annex I shows the premium as a percentage of the earnings per week and per four-week period.
3.7.3 Shift premium

a. An employee who does shift work is entitled to a premium.

b. The table below shows the shift-work premiums for employees working 2-shift and 3-shift rotation schedules. The table under (d) shows the premiums that apply to shifts worked on Sundays and public holidays.

<tr>
<td>3-shift rotation</td>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

c. If the company operates both a 2-shift and 3-shift rotation schedule, the employer may apply a single percentage for the premium based on the premium percentages shown in the previous table.

Notes to 3.7.3 c
If a single percentage is applied, this must be between 13.3% and 15% (inclusive); the extent to which work is performed in two or three shifts may play a role in deciding on the single percentage.

d. The following premiums apply for shifts work on Sundays and public holidays recognised in the collective agreement.

<td>182.8%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

* This percentage applies to hourly earnings that are 0.58% of the monthly earnings.
 This premium does not apply to a public holiday that includes a period of 18 consecutive hours during which the employee has not worked.

9 Annex I shows the premium as a percentage of the earnings per week and per four-week period.
e. An employee who has been regularly working shifts and who will now be working normal working hours or in a different kind of regular shift with a lower shift premium will be entitled to receive the original premium over a certain period of time:

• if the employee is younger than 45, the period of continued payment is the same as the period of notice that would apply for the employee for a period of service equal to the uninterrupted period over which the employee has been working shifts;
• if the employee is aged 45 or older, the period of continued payment is equal to two times the period of notice as referred to above.

In either case, this period will be extended by two months if the employee has worked shifts for at least the last five years without interruption.

3.7.4 Payment for work performed under a continuous shift work system

Where work is performed under a continuous shift work system (more than three shifts), the employer will draw up payment arrangements in consultation with the employer’s association and the trade unions. The payment arrangements will be included in the working hour policy referred to in 2.4.
3.7.5 Premium for non-standard working hours

a. Non-standard working hours refers to when an employee works at a time other than his or her scheduled normal working hours, but for no longer than the number of hours the employee was scheduled to work that day.

b. If the employer instructs a full-time employee to work at a different time of day, i.e. non-standard working hours, the employee may be entitled to a premium as shown in the table following.

Table: Premium for non-standard working hours

<thead>
<tr>

<td>0.21%</td>
<td>36.2%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

* This percentage applies to hourly earnings that are 0.58% of the monthly earnings.
 An hour is also deemed to be ‘directly preceding’ or ‘directly following’ the normal working hours if that hour is separated from the normal working hours by a statutory rest period or a rest period based on local conditions.

c. This premium does not apply to hours worked at a time outside the normal working hours if:
   • the employee is catching up on overtime work he or she was unable to do on the same day due to an interruption in operations;
   • this concerns catch-up hours during which the employee, according to plan and along with all employees in the company or in one or more departments, is catching up on work the same day which was not or could not be performed.
   The employer may designate certain working hours as catch-up hours as specified above in consultation with the works council.

3.7.6 Inhaaluren van oproepkrachten

If an on-call worker has worked fewer than the agreed minimum number of hours in a particular payment period for which he or she has been paid, within three months of the end of this period the employer may still require that the employee work the hours not yet worked without additional payment.

10 Annex I shows the premium as a percentage of the earnings per week and per four-week period.
3.7.7 In-situ work: compensation of additional travel time and additional travel and accommodation costs

Notes to 3.7.7

• In-situ work includes activities like, but not limited to, the production, installation and/or maintenance of products or systems, along with the supervision, design, and construction work required for these activities, all of which by their nature have to be carried out at the site of the work.
• Every employee spends a certain amount of time and money in commuting to and from work. It is only the additional travel time and additional travel costs which arise from the in-situ work activities that are eligible for the compensation specified in 3.7.7(c) and (d), i.e. the travel time and costs in excess of the normal commuting time and costs incurred by the employee, or comparable employees in the company.
• Existing company regulations which are at least equal to the provisions of 3.7.7(c) do not need to be revised.

a. Area of application
• The provisions of 3.7.7 apply in the situation where the employee is instructed by the employer to carry out in-situ work outside the company site or outside the sites where the employee has been appointed to work.
• The provisions of 3.7.7(b) and (c) only apply if the employee is carrying out in-situ work in the Netherlands, Germany, Belgium, or Luxembourg; a separate arrangement must be drawn up by the employer in consultation with the trade unions or works council for in-situ work carried out in other countries.

b. General provisions
• Six days a week on occasionIf, in the employer’s opinion, special circumstances so dictate, in the period from 15 October to 1 March the employer may require that the employee work six days a week on an in-situ job, without having to consult with the trade unions.
• 56 years or older

An employee who previously performed occasional in-situ work cannot be obliged to do so after turning 56; this also applies to an employee who turned 55 before 1 January 2017.

c. Compensation of travel time

• Only for additional travel time outside working hours
Travel time within the normal working hours is considered time worked and is not eligible for any special travel time compensation. The employer will pay the employee compensation for additional travel time required for the employee to perform in-situ work.
• Calculating the travel time
  - When using public transport, the travel time is the time, as stated in the public transport timetable, required to travel from the station closest to the employee’s home to the site where the in-situ work will be performed, and vice versa;
  - When using other means of transport, the travel time is the time needed to cover the distance by the shortest possible route from the centre of the place of residence to the site where the in-situ work will be performed, and vice versa, as determined using a reasonable comparison with the travel time when using public transport for a comparable distance.

- Number of travel hours compensated
  - The employee will be entitled to full compensation for travel time if the employee spends no more than one day at the site where the in-situ work is performed or if the employee has to spend the night away from home on account of this work;
  - If the employee works longer than one day on an in-situ task and must travel to and from the site each day, the employee is entitled to full compensation for two hours or less of additional travel time; if the employee travels longer than this, at least two hours will be compensated.

- Travel time compensation percentages
  The amount of compensation for travel time depends on the day on which the employee travels. The percentages below apply to the contracted work week.
  - Monday to Saturday (inclusive): 0.48% of the monthly earnings (82.8% of the hourly earnings);
  - Sunday: 0.96% of the monthly earnings (165.5% of the hourly earnings);
  - On a public holiday recognised in the collective agreement: 1.43% of the monthly earnings (246.6% of the hourly earnings).11

- Travelling home once a week
  - An employee who has to spend more than a week away from home will be given the opportunity each week of travelling home upon completion of the work week stipulated for the job. The employer may, however, deviate from this if the work so demands or if travel connections so occasion; this must be arranged in prior consultation;
  - If, according to the work schedule, work will also be performed on Saturday, once every two weeks the employee may leave work at such a time that he or she can arrive home by around 15:00 on that Saturday. In this case, the employee will not be required to start travelling back to the same site any earlier than at 06:00 the following Monday, with the travel time determined based on a route starting from the centre of the employee’s place of residence.

d. Compensation for travel and accommodation costs

- Only additional costs
  The employer will pay the employee compensation for additional travel and accommodation costs incurred while performing in-situ work.

- Travel costs
  The compensation to be paid will be determined based on the shortest possible route by public transport travelling at the lowest fare.

11 Annex I shows the premium as a percentage of the earnings per week and per four-week period.
• Accommodation costs
  If the travel connections are such that an overnight stay at a guest house is required, the employer will reimburse the costs with due observance of company rules. In such cases the employee will be given an allowance of €3.40 per day for out-of-pocket expenses, unless these are reimbursed by some other means.

3.7.8 Reimbursement of union subscription for 2019

The employer will reimburse an employee who is a member of a trade union on 1 January 2019 for the union subscription that employee was required to pay for 2019.
3.8 Paid sick leave and incapacity for work

Recommendation re 3.8
The parties to this collective agreement recommend that the companies, in consultation with the works council or the commission for Safety, Health and Welfare, draw up a comprehensive plan of approach to dealing with preventable sickness absence and incapacity for work. Aspects which should in any case be covered in this plan are:

- improvements that should be made concerning the quality of the working conditions, paying particular attention to noise, dangerous substances, and ergonomic and social conditions;
- a targeted sickness absence policy that includes combined social and medical support; and
- a timetable for the implementation of the plan and its evaluation.

3.8.1 Continued payment of wages (sick pay) and top-up a. During the first 52 weeks that an employee is incapacitated for work and is not entitled to benefit under the Sickness Benefits Act, the employer will top up the wage prescribed by law; this top-up is equal to the difference between the wage prescribed by law and 100% of the full daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act\(^{12}\).

b. During the following 52 weeks that an employee is incapacitated for work and is not entitled to benefit under the Sickness Benefits Act, the employer will pay the employee the wage prescribed by law, up to a maximum of 70% of the maximum daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act.

c. Contrary to the provision set out in 3.8.1(b), the employer is obliged to top up the wage prescribed by law during the second 52 weeks of incapacity for work by an amount equal to the difference between the wage prescribed by law and 80% of the full daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act:
   - as long as the employee, in the view of the employer and the occupational health physician, cooperates to the best of their ability in recovery and vocational rehabilitation;
   - if the employee is fully incapacitated for work and the occupational health physician has determined that the employee has no further lasting capacity for work.

d. The employer may, in consultation with the trade unions, and bearing in mind the provisions of Article 7:629 of the Dutch Civil Code, reduce the percentage referred to in 3.8.1(a) by a number of percentage points, spread, if desired, over different periods during the first 52 weeks of incapacity for work while at the same time

\(^{12}\) Also see 3.8.3.
increasing the statutory percentage referred to in 3.8.1(b) by the same number of percentage points, again, if desired, spread over different periods.
e. If the employee has reached Dutch state retirement age or has been deprived of liberty by law the employer is not required to provide a top-up nor pay said employee's wages for the first two days of incapacity for work.

3.8.2 Deviations

a. The employer will not make use of the possibility provided by law to agree with the employee that one day be deducted from the employee's annual leave entitlement in the event of calling in sick.
b. The employer will not be required to pay sick pay or a top-up for the first day of sick leave if the company has introduced a policy aimed at preventing abuse of sick leave that states such. The employee is required to consult with the works council before introducing such a policy for the first time.
c. In consultation with the works council, the employer may draw up a policy stating how an employee is to act while on sick leave. If this policy includes sanctions for employees who contravene the sickness absence monitoring regulations, the employer may impose these sanctions, in which case the employer may derogate from the provisions of 3.8 stated above.

a. In the event of incapacity for work, the private use of a car placed at the employee's disposal by the employer is disregarded when calculating the daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act (hereinafter also referred to as the 'Sickness Benefits Act daily wage').
b. If the employee's working hours are increased or reduced during the reference period that applies for establishing the Sickness Benefits Act daily wage, a notional Sickness Benefits Act daily wage will apply for the purposes of 3.8.1(a) and (c) and 3.8.4.(b) That notional Sickness Benefits Act daily wage will be equal to the Sickness Benefits Act daily wage that would have applied if the employee's working hours during the entire reference period had been the working hours that applied at the time when the incapacity for work commenced.
c. The Sickness Benefits Act daily wage (actual or notional) will be adjusted in line with the general salary adjustments in the Metalektro.

3.8.4 Vocational rehabilitation for employees declared partially incapacitated for work

a. If the employee has been declared partially incapacitated for work, the employer will offer the employee other suitable work where possible, and if no suitable work is available, will inform the employee of this in writing. In that case the employee will be offered guidance in finding suitable work with a different employer within or outside the sector. The employee will cooperate in these efforts. This does not, however, prejudice the employee’s right to appeal as stipulated by law.

b. If an employee who is fully or partially incapacitated for work returns to work, the employer will top up the employee’s salary from the moment the employee:
- resumes work at the same employer, performing suitable work or doing his or her previous job with work adaptations;
- starts work at another employer doing suitable work at the level of salary being offered for that work.

This top-up will be such that, together with the salary, any other top-ups and/or disability benefits or other benefits, the total will be equal to a percentage of the full daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act, i.e. 100% in the first year and 90% in the second year. This top-up will be provided for no longer than two years from the date the employee resumes work.

c. The employee will receive the top-up referred to in 3.8.4(b) even if the employee, in consultation with the occupational health physician, starts working as part of occupational therapy.

Recommendation re 3.8.4
The parties to this collective agreement recommend that employers in the industry stimulate the vocational rehabilitation of employees who are to some degree incapacitated for work by:
- examining which posts at the company are or could be made suitable to be performed by said employees;
- in the event of one of these posts becoming vacant, report the opening to one or more bodies charged with the vocational rehabilitation of employees who are to some degree incapacitated for work.

3.8.5 Differentiated WGA premium: recovery option

WGA is the Dutch initialism for the Resumption of Work (Partially Disabled Persons) Regulations. This act states that the employer may recover the differentiated premium for the WGA from the employee. During the term of this collective agreement, the employer may recover up to 50% of said premium.

3.8.6 WGA gap insurance

a. With effect from 1 January 2009, the employer is obliged to offer the employee a WGA gap insurance under the Resumption of Work (Partially Disabled Persons) Regulations (WGA) to cover the financial risk of incapacity for work for at least 35% but less than 80%. This insurance entitles the employee to claim a periodic benefit to supplement the WGA follow-up benefit until they reach Dutch state retirement age. The amount of the benefit is equal to 70% of the daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act, up to the maximum daily wage pursuant to the Sickness Benefits Act, as referred to under 3.8.3, multiplied by the percentage of incapacity for work and less the WGA follow-up benefit.

b. The obligation to offer a WGA gap insurance does not apply for employers who bear the risk referred to in 3.8.6(a) themselves or who decide to assume the risk on the advice of the works council.

c. The premium for the WGA gap insurance was paid by the employee until 1 January 2011; from 1 January 2011 the employer and employee must each pay for 50% of the premium evenly.

d. If the employer already offered employees a WGA gap insurance on 1 November 2007, the insurance must be amended to comply with the conditions stipulated in 3.8.6(a) and (c) on the occasion of the first contract extension.

3.8.7 WIA lower threshold insurance

If the employee takes part in a WIA lower threshold insurance to be determined by the Consultative Council in the Metalektro (ROM), the employer will pay 50% of the insurance premium for this. This applies from 1 January 2009.

Notes to 3.8.7

A WIA lower threshold insurance has been provided in the industry since 1 January 2009. Employees have the option of joining this scheme. The WIA lower threshold insurance covers the financial risk in the event of incapacity for work of between 15% to 35% (i.e. the lower threshold). This insurance provides the employee with a regular benefit equal to 100% of the daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act, up to a maximum of said daily wage, multiplied by the percentage of incapacity for work during a specified period (Sickness Benefits Act daily wage: see 3.8.3).

13 WIA is the Dutch initialism for the Work and Income (Capacity for Work) Act.
3.9 Payment for periods of lay-off during contract of employment

3.9.1 During the first six months of the contract of employment

During the first six months of the contract of employment, the application of Article 7:628 of the Dutch Civil Code is restricted to one week. The employer will continue to pay the salary for a period of one week at most.

3.9.2 Reduction in working hours in the event of unworkable weather conditions or adverse water levels

In the event of work being interrupted on the basis of the General Authorisation to reduce working hours in the event of unworkable weather conditions or adverse water levels (Decree of the College of Government Intermediaries of 6 December 1945, Government Gazette 1945, no 129), the application of Article 7:628 of the Dutch Civil Code is restricted to one week. The employer will continue to pay the salary for a period of one week at most. The period of one week applies afresh to each period of work interruption.

3.9.3 Temporary short-time working scheme

If the employer introduces a temporary short-time working scheme approved by the competent body, the employer will not pay salary for the hours in which no work was performed. Article 7:628 of the Dutch Civil Code does not apply in this event.

Recommendation re 3.9.3

The parties to this collective agreement advise the employer to, before proceeding to introduce a temporary short-time working scheme as per Article 8 of the Labour Relations (Special Powers) Decree (BBA), consult with the employers’ association, the trade unions, and the works council.

3.9.4 Unemployment benefits

a. If the employee is entitled to benefit under the Unemployment Insurance Act because the employer is not or is no longer obliged to pay the salary under the provisions of 3.9.1, 3.9.2 or 3.9.3, the employer will top up this benefit to the level of the salary.

b. In the cases as referred to in 3.9.2 and 3.9.3, the employer will continue to pay the salary of an employee who is not entitled to benefit on account of the conditions laid down in Articles 15 to 21 inclusive of the Unemployment Insurance Act.
3.10 Pension

3.10.1 Mandatory participation

Except where the pension administrator has granted an exemption, the employee is obliged to participate in the pension scheme of Stichting Pensioenfonds van de MetaEktro, hereinafter called the MetaEktro Pension Fund or PME.

3.10.2 Personal pension arrangements

An employer who has requested and received permission from the MetaEktro Pension Fund to be exempted from the pension scheme made mandatory for employees in the MetaEktro is obliged to make arrangements by no later than 1 January 2008 that provide the same conditional additional pension entitlements as those granted to members born between 1950 and 1972 pursuant to Article 1.1.33 ‘Transitional scheme for PME Voluntary Early Retirement, Pre-pension and Life-Course Savings (VPL) scheme’ of the MetaEktro Pension Fund pension scheme dated 1 January 2015, corresponding to the scheme the parties to this collective agreement have set out in the ‘Agreement on Voluntary Early Retirement, Pre-pension and Life-Course Savings (VPL) with regard to the MetaEktro. The employer must subsequently continuously maintain said arrangements. Said arrangements to be made by the employer must also stipulate that, in the event of personal and collective change of employment within the MetaEktro, no loss of conditional additional pension entitlements will occur, however only if and insofar as these entitlements have not yet been acquired (prior to retirement), making them unconditional.

This transitional scheme can be financed through payment of a yet-to-be-determined contribution. The employee's part in this contribution will be no more than 50% of the difference between this contribution and the contribution set for MetaEktro Pension Fund for the conditional additional pension.
3.11 Death benefit

3.11.1 Death benefit

An employee’s surviving relatives are entitled to a lump-sum death benefit in accordance with the provisions of Article 7:674 of the Dutch Civil Code, which also states who is considered a surviving relative.

3.11.2 Calculating the death benefit

Contrary to the provisions of Article 7:674 of the Dutch Civil Code, the amount of death benefit is calculated over the period from the day after the employee’s death up to and including the last day of the second month subsequent to the month in which the death took place.

3.11.3 Payment

The death benefit will be paid by the employer insofar as it is not paid by a body responsible for implementing the Sickness Benefits Act, the Disablement Benefits Act (WAO), or the Work and Income (Capacity for Work) Act (WIA).

Notes to 3.11

If the employee has a contract of employment concluded before 31 December 1970 which contains more favourable conditions on this point, the employee’s surviving relatives will have the entitlement specified under these older conditions.
4. Annual leave, paid hours off, sick leave, and other leave

4.1 Annual leave

4.1.1 The term ‘annual leave’

Annual leave refers to the days determined by the employer to be days of annual leave in accordance with the provisions of 4.1.6.

4.1.2 Accrual of annual leave

a. The employee accrues paid annual leave in proportion to the length of time they have been employed with the company in that calendar year. An employee who has worked full time throughout the calendar year is entitled to 27 days (216 hours) of annual leave. This does not apply to an employee who qualifies for the transitional scheme for additional annual leave for older employees as specified in 4.1.5: this employee is entitled to 25 days (200 hours) of annual leave.

b. The increase in annual leave agreed in 1991 and 1992 from 23 days (184 hours) to 25 days (200 hours) per year does not apply to the employee whose employer concluded an agreement with the trade unions at that time on the grounds of which the Basic Work Year in the company is shorter than the Basic Work Year referred to in the collective agreement. This company-specific agreement must include provisions addressing the consequences of the shorter Basic Work Year.

c. Public holidays falling on working days and leave days will be considered as days worked for the purpose of calculating annual leave entitlement.

4.1.3 Long-service leave a. An employee who has been employed by the current employer for a period of 25 years or more without interruption is entitled to one day (8 hours) of long-service leave per year. If necessary, consultations will be held with the works council to determine the exact meaning of ‘without interruption’.

b. This long-service leave will be added to the employee’s leave entitlement in the calendar year in which the employee reaches 25 years of service. The long-service leave may not fall on a Saturday.

c. An employee who qualifies for the transitional scheme for additional annual leave for older employees (see 4.1.5) and who was 50 years or older on 1 January 2009 does not qualify for the long-service leave.
In establishing whether service has been interrupted, allowance will be made for interruptions that occur which in all reasonableness should be ignored for the purpose of applying the provisions of 4.1.3; such periods of interruption should, however, not be included when calculating the number of years of service.

4.1.4 Additional day(s) of annual leave for a six-day work week

a. An employee who, according to his or her regular work schedule, regularly works six days a week in a 52-week period is entitled to additional annual leave as shown in the table following. The additional day or days of leave will be taken on a Saturday on which the employee is scheduled to work according to his or her regular work schedule.

Public holidays falling on working days and leave days will be considered as days worked for the purpose of calculating this additional annual leave entitlement.

4.1.5 Transitional scheme for additional annual leave for older employees

a. An employee who was employed by the company on 1 January 2009 and aged 40 years or older on that date is entitled to additional annual leave as stipulated under 4.1.5(b) or (c) below. The additional leave may not fall on a Saturday.

b. If the employee was 40 years or older on 1 January 2009 but younger than 50, he or she is entitled to additional annual leave as shown in the table following. The number of additional days of annual leave the employee was entitled to on 1 January 2009 will not change for as long as the employee remains employed by the same company.

4.1.6 Scheduling annual leave

The employer will schedule the individual days of leave and the continuous period of annual leave for the employee in accordance with the following rules.

a. Relationship to year of accrual Annual leave will preferably be taken in the same year in which the entitlement is accrued.

b. Religious holidays
   The employer will take serious account of the employee's beliefs with regard to working on particular religious holidays and feast days, such as Good Friday, 15 August, 1 November, and similar.

c. Personal days of leave (days off)
   The employer will schedule personal days of leave in timely consultation with the employee. If the employee is incapacitated for work, the employer will schedule these days in accordance with the wishes of the employee.

d. Personal uninterrupted period of annual leave
   The employer will schedule a personal uninterrupted period of annual leave (i.e. annual holiday) in timely consultation with the employee and in accordance with the employee's wishes, unless there are serious reasons not to do so. From the time the employee makes his or her wishes known, the employer has a maximum of two weeks to inform the employee in writing that leave is not being granted at the desired time, stating the reasons for this decision; if the employer fails to do so on time, the annual leave must be scheduled in accordance with the wishes of the employee. If the employee is incapacitated for work, the employer will schedule the annual leave in accordance with the wishes of the employee.

e. Mandatory days off (collective leave)
   The employer may also designate one or more days as mandatory days off (collective leave), in which case the following provisions apply.
The employer may designate:
- one mandatory day off per calendar year in consultation with the works council;
- the second and third mandatory day off per calendar year with the consent of the works council;
- the fourth and any subsequent mandatory days off per calendar year with the consent of the works council, after the works council has consulted the employees on the matter.

f. Periods of collective annual leave
The employer must reach agreement with the works council before designating a specific period as a period of collective annual leave. The employees do not have to be consulted in this case.

g. Timely designation of collective leave
The employer will, insofar as possible, designate a period of collective annual leave/or mandatory days off by no later than 1 December of the year prior to the year in which the day off or period of leave is to be scheduled.

h. Changing the scheduled annual leave
If there are serious reasons for doing so, and following consultation with the employee, the employer may change the scheduled dates of the annual leave. The employer is liable for any losses suffered by the employee as a result.

Recommendation re 4.1.6 en 4.1.7
The parties to this collective agreement recommend that:
• unless company interests dictate otherwise, preference should be given to personal uninterrupted periods of annual leave, provided these periods are sufficiently spread out: it is desirable to spread the annual leave of all employees over a long period.
• when scheduling a period of uninterrupted annual leave, any holiday commitments the employee has already entered into should be taken into account.

4.1.7 Uninterrupted period of annual leave

a. Wherever possible, an uninterrupted period of annual leave (i.e. holidays) will commence between 30 April and 1 October and as a rule will last two weeks.

b. If the employer designates a period of collective annual leave that is shorter than two successive weeks, this leave must cover at least eight successive calendar days (i.e. including Saturdays and Sundays).

c. When designating the length of a period of collective annual leave, the employer will take serious account of the employees' beliefs with regard to not working on particular religious holidays and feast days, such as Good Friday, 15 August, 1 November, and similar.

d. Employees working shifts, regardless the shift system, must have at least one Sunday and two full weekends off in an uninterrupted period of annual leave.

4.1.8 Continued payment of salary and offset of unused annual leave

a. Employees are entitled to continue receiving their salary when taking annual leave.
b. If the employer has granted the employee annual leave in advance of accruing entitlement to such, the employer may offset this against leave yet to be accrued. This applies equally to a period of collective annual leave.
c. As long as the contract of employment is in effect, only contractual annual leave entitlement may be paid out to the employee in cash.

4.1.9 Days not considered days of leave

a. The following are not considered to form part of the annual leave:
   • a public holiday recognised in the collective agreement;
   • days or parts of days during which the employee is not working due to being incapacitated for work, except where this concerns:
   - days or time the employer has scheduled as the employee's personal annual leave in accordance with 4.1.6(d);
   - days or time within a period designated as collective leave if the employee expressed the desire to be exempt from his or her vocational rehabilitation obligations on those days.
b. The following are not considered to form part of the annual leave either; days or parts of days on which:
   • the employee is not working due to short-term absence (4.4) or taking special leave for employees who are union members (4.6);
   • the employee is not working due to pregnancy or childbirth;
   • a young employee is not working because the employer has given him or her time off to take a course, as stipulated by law or under the terms of this collective agreement;
   • the employee is not working because he or she is complying with an obligation arising from the law or a commitment between the employee and the government; that obligation or commitment must relate to national defence or the protection of public order. This provision does not apply if the employee is called up for military service or if the employee intends to be employed by the armed forces or another government agency.

14 In the context of 4.1.9 'is not working' means is not performing the stipulated work.
c. If one of the situations under 4.1.9(b) applies to the employee during a scheduled holiday and the employee informs the employer of this in advance of that holiday, the relevant day will not be deducted from the employee's annual leave entitlement.

d. Any days during a period of annual leave on which the employee is ill and for which the employer continues to pay the employee's wages will not be deducted from the employee's annual leave entitlement. This is subject to the employee reporting in sick immediately in the manner prescribed by the company.
4.2 Scheduled paid hours off

4.2.1 Number of scheduled paid hours off

a. The employee accrues scheduled paid hours off - i.e. time during which the employee is scheduled to work but is given time off with pay - in proportion to the length of time he or she has been employed with the company in that calendar year. The number of scheduled paid hours off is 104 for a full calendar year, i.e. 13 scheduled paid days off.

b. In consultation with the works council, the employer may set fewer or even no scheduled paid days off for a calendar year for the entire company, one or more departments, or one or more groups of employees.

c. Should the employer opt to do this, then the actual salary of the employees affected for that calendar year will be increased by 0.383% for each scheduled paid day off (8 hours) less than the 13 scheduled paid days off (104 hours) per calendar year.

Notes to 4.2.1 c
The employee accrues holiday pay and, if applicable, the shift premium over this temporarily higher salary, and pension contributions must be paid over this income.

d. The employer will inform the employees of a decision to reduce the number of scheduled paid hours off by no later than November of the year preceding the relevant calendar year. Employees who, within three weeks of receiving notification of the decision, inform the employer in writing that they do not agree with the reduction will retain their entitlement to 104 scheduled paid hours off.
4.2.2 Designating time as scheduled paid hours off

a. The employer will select half working days on which the employee is scheduled to work to be designated as scheduled paid hours off. The employer can decide otherwise for economical or organisational reasons or reasons relating to labour market conditions.

b. After consulting the employee, the employer determines which working hours will be scheduled paid hours off.

c. The employer will inform the employee which working hours will be scheduled paid hours off. The employer will designate these periods at least 14 days in advance of the start date of the schedule, though the employer may agree a different period with the works council.

d. On consultation with the works council, the employer may designate 24 scheduled paid hours off as collective time off that applies to all (or practically all) employees. The employer must have the consent of the works council before designating more than this number of hours as said collective time off. The works council must first consult the employees on the matter before providing consent. The employees do not have to be consulted, however, if the period is designated as collective annual leave.

e. The employer must have the consent of the works council before changes can be made to the usual way, within the company, in which scheduled paid hours off are assigned or how these are spread over the year. This also applies if the change affects only one part of the company.

f. The consent of the works council as stated in 4.2.2(c), (d) and (e) is not required in the event that an employee is assigned to work outside the company and is unable to work at the other site due to collective time off in effect at that site at that time, in which case the employer will first make use of the 24 scheduled paid hours off referred to in 4.2.2(d).

g. In situations other than those referred to in 4.2.2(e) and (f), the employer may only designate periods other than half working days as scheduled paid hours off in consultation with the employee concerned.

Notes to 4.2

Employees who are sick during a period in which scheduled paid hours off are being taken are not entitled to alternative time off.
4.3 Alternative use of annual leave, scheduled paid hours off, and overtime

4.3.1 Time-saving scheme

a. In consultation between the employer and the trade unions and/or the works council a time-saving scheme may be introduced in the company.
b. Under such a scheme, employees may save time (i.e. leave entitlement) using scheduled paid hours off, contractual annual leave entitlement, and overtime.
c. The employer and employees may agree that, in the context of the time-saving scheme, the employee may save more than six days of contractual annual leave per year in the form of time or money.
d. Participation in the time-saving scheme is voluntary for the employees, with the understanding that the provisions in this collective agreement concerning determining scheduled paid hours off, annual leave, and overtime still apply.
e. Employers who implement a time-saving scheme must provide a guarantee, for example by establishing a special fund or arranging reinsurance.
f. An employee's entitlement to hours saved under a time-saving scheme does not lapse with time.

4.3.2 Personal time-saving

a. On consultation with the employer, the employee is entitled to cash in lieu of a maximum of 12 half working days of scheduled paid hours off, with said cash to be put towards their pension/early retirement provision.
b. The entitlement referred to under 4.3.2(a) does not exist or is restricted to fewer than 12 half working days of scheduled paid hour off if and insofar as:
   • the employer has made use of the option stipulated in 4.2.2(d) and has designated more than 14 half working days as collective time off, assuming this also applies to the employee concerned;
   • the employer has made use of the option stipulated in 4.2.2(e) and has applied more than 14 half working days of scheduled paid hours off in a form other than scheduled half working days off, assuming this also applies to the employee concerned;
   • despite the other provisions of 4.3.2(b), the employer cannot reasonably be required to grant this entitlement; if the employer is of the opinion that this is the case, the employer will notify the employee accordingly in writing stating the reasons for this decision.
4.3.3 Buying, saving and selling days

a. The employee is entitled to buy a maximum of ten days of leave per year. These days of leave may only be taken in consultation with the employer.
b. The employee may save hours of contractual annual leave up to a maximum of 13 times the number of contracted working hours per week. The saved days do not lapse with time.
c. At the request of the employee, the employer and employee may agree that the employee can sell up to six days of contractual annual leave a year for other purposes than the employee’s pension/early retirement provision or a time-saving scheme.

4.3.4 Life-course savings plan and leave

If an employee wants to take leave in a case which has not been regulated by law using credit under the life-course savings plan, the following provisions apply:

a. The employee may take part-time or full-time leave.
b. The employee must submit to the employer a written request for this leave, taking into account the following periods of not:
   • at least three months for a period of leave lasting less than three months;
   • at least six months for a period of leave lasting three months or longer.
c. After consulting the employee, the employer will make a decision on the leave request within one month of receiving the request.
d. The employer will automatically grant a request from the employee for leave lasting no more than two years directly preceding the employee’s date of retirement.

Notes to 4.3.4

This may be, for example, a period of unpaid leave to spend time caring for parents who need help, to study, to take a sabbatical, etc. This does not concern leave that is prescribed as paid leave under the Work and Care Act, i.e. maternity leave, paternity/partner leave, adoption leave, emergency leave, short-term sick leave, short-term care leave, and parental leave.
4.4 Short periods of absence

4.4.1 The arrangements

a. An employee who needs to leave work for a short period of time during working hours due to special circumstances will be permitted to do so where this is customary within the company.
b. The table below shows the number of hours/days over which the employer will continue to pay the employee’s wages in the event of the circumstances listed.

4.4.2 Partner in this context

• In this context, partner means the employee’s spouse or the person with whom the employee cohabits, without being married, and with whom he or she runs a joint household, as long as the employee has notified the employer in advance that this person is his or her partner. A partner does not include a first-degree relative under Dutch law.
• Partners run a joint household if they both have their main place of residence in the same home and can been seen to care for each other, for example by contributing to the cost of running the household.

4.4.3 Other arrangements

The company will consult internally on arrangements for situations other than those described in the table above, on the grounds of regional or local custom for example.

4.4.4 Absence to attend medical appointments

Arrangements will be made in the company for absence for the purpose of visiting a GP, dentist, or medical specialist, or for post-treatment care.

4.5 Special leave

4.5.1 Consequences for the Basic Work Year

a. There are hours during which the employee does not work and yet are deemed to be hours worked for the sake of calculating the Basic Work Year (BWY). This applies in the case of the employee taking special leave of the type shown in the table below (and in the event of incapacity for work; see 4.5.3). The table also states the provision of the collective agreement which sets out the terms and conditions for the particular form of leave.

b. The scheduled number of hours for the employee for the day or days on which leave is taken are included in full when calculating the Basic Work Year. If the employee does not have a work schedule, it will be assumed the employee works 8 hours a day.

c. The amount of pay owing for these hours of leave may or may not be included in the employee's monthly earnings; to see whether it is, see the rightmost column of the table following and, for incapacity for work, 4.5.3(c).

4.5.2 In the case of regular shift work

If, according to that stated in 4.5.1, the employee's wage during the hours of leave is included in the monthly earnings and he or she regularly works shifts, the employee will also receive the average hourly shift premium during the hours of leave, calculated over the preceding three months.

4.5.3 In the case of incapacity for work

a. In the case of incapacity for work, the hours of sick leave will be included as hours worked when calculating the Basic Work Year when these hours concern time the employee is sick while on scheduled annual leave.

b. These hours of sick leave will not be deemed to be hours worked if these are:
   • days or time the employer has scheduled as the employee's personal annual leave in accordance with 4.1.6(d);
   • days or time within a period designated as collective leave if the employee expressed the desire to be exempt from his or her vocational rehabilitation obligations on those days.

c. The amount of pay owing for hours of sick leave may or may not be included in the employee's monthly earnings, i.e.:
   • the hours are included if these concern hours that the employee has reported in sick while on scheduled annual leave;
   • the hours are not included if these come after the period of continued payment of wages stipulated by law.

Notes to 4.5.3

Employees who are sick during a period in which scheduled paid hours off are being taken are not entitled to alternative time off.
4.6 Special leave for employees who are union members

4.6.1 Paid time off
An employee who is a member of a trade union will be given paid time off for the following activities, having due regard to the provisions of 4.6.2:

a. participating as an official representative in union congresses, union councils, general meetings, or a comparable body;
b. participating as an official representative in collective agreement negotiations in the Consultative Council in the Metalektro (ROM);
c. participating in courses organised by the trade unions.

Notes to 4.6.1 a Comparable bodies are:
- for FNV Metaal: Members Parliament, Sector Council, and Industry Group Section;
- for CNV Vakmensen: Council for the Industry Sector, Collective Agreement Committee for the Metalektro, and District Executive Group for Industry/Metalektro;
- for De Unie: Executive Council, and National Board for the Metal Sector.

4.6.2 Conditions
a. The trade union must notify the employer in good time to request this time off for its members.
b. The employee will only be granted paid time off to participate in a course organised by the trade union as referred to in 4.6.1(c) if this does not conflict with company interests. Furthermore, such granting of time off will, in principle, be restricted to two days per two years per nine employees organised in the trade unions.

Notes to 4.6
Deviation from the provisions of 4.6 in an MB Collective Agreement may only be made with respect to employees who are members of trade unions that are actually involved in concluding the MB Collective Agreement and have signed it.
5. Training and development

5.1 Working on sustainable employability

5.1.1 One day a year

The employee is entitled to one ‘employability day’ (8 hours) per calendar year over which the employer continues to pay the employee’s salary.

5.1.2 Use of the day

The employee uses the employability day to actively and autonomously work on remaining employable in the long term, with the time used specifically for a course or on development or health. The employee decides how to use the sustainable employability day in consultation with the employer.

5.2 Career planning interview

5.2.1 One per year

The employee is entitled to one career planning interview each year.
5.3 Training days

5.3.1 Number of training days

The employee accrues the right to two training days (16 hours) per year. Entitlement to training days (hours) will be accrued in proportion to the period of employment during the calendar year.

5.3.2 Use of training days

Training days (hours) need not be used in the calendar year in which the employee accrued the right to these: up to five days (40 hours) can be collected; any hours in excess of this number will lapse. The employer and employee may agree, however, that the excess training days (hours) will remain valid for a longer period of time.

5.3.3 Choice and scheduling of training

Employees will choose the course for which they wish to use the training day in consultation with the employer. The employer and the employee will determine the days (hours) when the employee will take the course in close consultation.

Notes to 5.3

Employees may report any problems they encounter in availing themselves of their right to training days to the Consultative Council in the Metalektro (ROM).
5.4 Study costs financing scheme

5.4.1 Drawing up scheme by employer

The employer will draw up a study costs financing scheme.

5.5 Accreditation of prior learning (APL)

5.5.1 Reimbursement

As of 1 January 2013, for each period of five calendar years the employee is entitled to reimbursement by the employer of the costs incurred for an APL test up to a maximum of €850 gross.
5.6 Generation pact

5.6.1 Objective and approach

a. Under the Generation Pact Scheme:
   - an older employee may work fewer hours
   - for a certain percentage of the original salary
   - while still being entitled to full pension accrual over the original salary.

b. This scheme is a pilot scheme in effect during the term of this collective agreement.

c. The technical implementation of the Generation Pact is included in this collective agreement as Annex C: Generation Pact Scheme.

5.6.2 Variations

a. An Employee who regularly works shifts* and who is aged 60 or older and who has an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 80/90/100 Variation. The Employer shall grant the request.

   *‘Regular shift work’ is deemed to mean shift work that has been performed over a period of at least one year and which is or must be performed according to a pre-arranged schedule.

b. An Employee who does not regularly works shifts and who is aged 62 or older and who has an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 80/90/100 Variation. The Employer shall grant the request.

c. An Employee aged 62 or older and who has an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 70/85/100 Variation. The Employer has the option to grant the request or reject it (dual optionality).

d. An Employee aged 63 or older - or at a younger age if and as agreed within the company - with an Annual Salary of more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to have one of the Variations applied. The Employer has the option to grant the request or reject it (dual optionality).

e. If, at company level, agreements that deviate in a positive sense are made for Employees with regard to the age at which the Employee can make use of this Generation Pact, the Pension Fund and/or the Insurer is mandated to implement this from a technical aspect.

Notes to 5.6.1

With the Generation Pact, older employees are given the opportunity to work fewer hours and reach retirement in good health while young people get the chance to enter the workforce. The guiding principle is that the hours that become available due to older employees working less are filled by new recruits with a contract of employment.
6. Additional provisions

6.1 Annual Social Report

6.1.1 Sociaal jaarverslag

The employer will also provide the trade unions with a copy of the annual social report it provides to the works council and will discuss the information contained in this report on request of the trade union or trade unions.

6.1.2 Internal vacancies

- If a vacancy arises within a company, employees in the company will be given the opportunity to apply for it.
- If an employee uses this internal application procedure but fails to meet the job requirements, the employer will, if possible, give this employee the opportunity to satisfy the requirements by means of training.

6.2 Profit-sharing scheme

6.2.1 Amending the current scheme

The employer will only amend a profit-sharing scheme laid down in company regulations after consulting with the trade unions and with the consent of the works council.

6.2.2 Introducing a scheme

The employer will consult with the trade unions prior to introducing a profit-sharing scheme which contains elements of performance-related pay.
6.3 Consultative Council in the Metalektro (ROM)

6.3.1 ROM

There is a ‘Consultative Council in the Metalektro’ (also known by its Dutch initialism ‘ROM’), whose articles of association form part of this collective agreement.

6.3.2 Employer contribution

The employer must pay ROM a contribution, which in 2019 and 2020 is 0.03% of the wage bill for the company in that year under the Social Insurance (Funding) Act [Wet financiering sociale verzekeringen; Wfsv]. This contribution is to be used to fund ROM administration costs at branch level.

6.3.3 Advance payment

The employer is obliged to pay an advance on its ROM contribution. In 2019 and 2020 the employer must do this by a date to be set by ROM; this will in any case be no later than by 15 October each year. ROM will determine the amount of the advance on the basis of a reasonable estimate of the company’s wage bill under the Social Insurance (Funding) Act. The final settlement for 2019 will be made no later than on 15 August 2020; the final settlement for 2020 will be made no later than on 15 Augustus 2021.

6.3.4 Duty to disclose information

The employer is obliged to provide ROM with the information it needs to calculate the advance and contribution.

6.3.5 Interest on late payment

If the contribution or advance is not paid on time, the then current statutory interest on the amount owing will be charged from the date that payment of the contribution or advance is due.
6.4 Social Fund

6.4.1 SSF

ROM has set up a Social Fund in the Metalektro, known by its Dutch initialism SSF. The articles of association of SSF form part of this collective agreement.

6.4.2 Employer contribution

The employer must pay SSF a contribution, which in 2019 and 2020 is 0.07% of the wage bill for the company in that year under the Social Insurance (Funding) Act.

6.4.3 Advance payment

The employer is obliged to pay an advance on its SSF contribution. In 2019 and 2020 the employer must do this by a date to be set by ROM; this will in any case be no later than by 15 October each year. ROM will determine the amount of the advance on the basis of a reasonable estimate of the company’s wage bill under the Social Insurance (Funding) Act. The final settlement for 2019 will be made no later than on 15 August 2020; the final settlement for 2020 will be made no later than on 15 Augustus 2021.

6.4.4 Duty to disclose information

The employer is obliged to provide ROM with the information it needs to calculate the advance and contribution.

6.4.5 Interest on late payment

6.5 Protection of employee representatives

6.5.1 No adverse effects

Employees elected as employee representatives in a company body may not suffer any adverse effects in their position as employee as a result of carrying out this work.

Notes to 6.5.1
This does not simply mean dismissal but also adverse effects concerning remuneration and promotion opportunities.

6.5.2 Mediation

An employee who believes that the employer is acting in contravention of the provisions of 6.5.1 may invoke the mediation procedure referred to in 7.9. The provisions of Article 4.A(2), (3), (4) and (5) of Annex E need not be applied.
6.6 Union work in the company

6.6.1 Consultations with the trade unions

The employer will consult with the trade unions if the latter lets it be known that they want to:

(a) carry out trade union work within the company;

and/or

(b) arrange for employee members of the unions from the company to constitute part of the delegation for consultation on conditions of employment and any other matters that are generally arranged in consultation with the trade unions.

During this consultation, which will concern the consequences of the planned activities, the trade unions may be represented by a union executive working in the company, unless otherwise agreed.

6.6.2 Trade union facilities

In the context of the provisions of 6.6.1, the employer will provide the trade unions with the facilities to enable them to maintain contact with their members in the company. The employers and trade unions will consult on the type, extent and form of the facilities to be provided. Examples of facilities include:

(a) allowing notices of meetings of member groups of the trade unions in the company to be put up on bulletin boards;

(b) giving time off to executive members of the trade unions who work shifts in order to attend meetings of trade unions on company matters which are intended for them;

(c) making company space available - usually outside company hours - for trade union meetings on company matters;

(d) in urgent cases only, making company space available during company operating hours to allow contact between members of the trade unions in the company and trade union representatives; and

(e) the annual allotment of hours the company makes available for union work within the company.

Notes to 6.6.2

- The number of union members within the company can be taken into account in determining how many hours per year will be made available for union work.

- The company rules in effect at the location must be respected when using the facilities referred to above.
6.6.3 No adverse effects for executive members

a. Executive members are members of a trade union who:
   • are members of the committee of company member groups;
   • in large companies
     - are members of divisional committees that come under the responsibility of the board of company member groups; and
     - are employee members of a negotiation delegation, where applicable.

b. Executive members of the trade unions may not suffer any disadvantage in their position as employee as a result of filling this trade union position. The following conditions apply in this regard:
   • the consultation referred to in 6.6.1 has taken place;
   • the trade union facilities referred to in 6.6.2 have been provided; and
   • the trade unions have informed the employer in advance of the names of the employees who will be acting as executive members.

c. An employee acting as executive member may only be dismissed from the company if this employee would have been dismissed were he or she not an executive member.

d. If the employer is planning on dismissing an executive member, the employer must refrain from doing so until having spoken to the paid union official of the union of which the employee is an executive member. In the course of this interview an endeavour will be made to find a solution to the problem that has arisen.

e. If the employee concerned believes that the employer is acting in contravention of the provisions of 6.6.3(a), (b) and (c), the employee may exercise his or her right to mediation. See 7.9.2(d).

f. In the case of dismissal, if the Mediation Body has failed to give its opinion by the end of the period of notice, possible dismissal will be suspended until the Mediation Body has provided its opinion.

g. In the case of summary dismissal for compelling reasons as per Article 7:678 of the Dutch Civil Code, the contract of employment will be considered not to have been broken if the Mediation Body is of the opinion that the executive member was dismissed because of being an executive member.

Notes to 6.6.3

It is a principle of good policy that an employee elected or appointed to bodies or committees functioning within the company should not be dismissed or hindered by the employer in the opportunities within the company simply because of the position held. Examples of being hindered in the opportunities include having remuneration and promotion opportunities restricted. This principle is equally applicable to an employee who has been appointed as a union executive member. The legal grounds for dismissal apply equally to these employees. A dispute between the employer and employee should first be submitted to the organisation involved on either side before the matter is, if necessary, escalated to the Mediation Body.
6.7 Union subscription

6.7.1 Work Expenses Scheme

The employee who is a member of a trade union has the right in 2019 and 2020 to have his union contribution included in the tax exemption under the Work Expenses Scheme [Werkkostenregeling; WKR] in the company.
6.8 Hiring management consultancies, mergers, reorganisations, closures

6.8.1 Hiring management consultancies

The employer will consult with the works council before signing a final contract with management consultants to study the company’s organisation. In these talks with the works council, the procedure for carrying out the study and the manner in which the employees will be informed about this will be discussed. If the study will also involve employees, the employer will also inform the trade unions.

c. After this, the employer will discuss the measures under consideration and any possible consequences for the employers with the trade unions, the employers’ association, and the works council in order to give them the opportunity to put forward their point of view and thus possibly affect the employer’s decision. The employer will inform the Supervisory Board or any comparable policymaking body about the results of these deliberations.

6.8.2 Mergers

An employer considering a merger will take the social consequences into account in the decision. In that context, the employer will do the following:

a. The employer will inform the employers’ association and trade unions as soon as possible about the measures under consideration.

b. The employer will inform the works council and the employees no later than one week later; this may occur later if agreed with the trade unions. The employer, the trade unions, and the employers’ association shall observe secrecy about the measures under consideration up to the time the employer has informed the works council.

c. After this, the employer will discuss the measures under consideration and any possible consequences for the employers with the trade unions, the employers’ association, and the works council in order to give them the opportunity to put forward their point of view and thus possibly affect the employer’s decision. The employer will inform the Supervisory Board or any comparable policymaking body about the results of these deliberations.

6.8.3 Company closure or retrenchment

An employer considering closing a company or part of a company and/or radically altering the workforce will take the social consequences into account in the decision. In that context, the employer will do the following:

a. If the employer expects the scale of employment within the company to be seriously jeopardised by certain developments, the employer will inform the employers’ association and the trade unions as soon as possible and invite them to discussions where the employer will provide insight into the nature and possible consequences of these developments.

b. The employer will inform the works council and the employees no later than one week later; this may occur later if agreed with the trade unions. The employer, the trade unions, and the employers’ association shall observe secrecy about the measures under consideration up to the time the employer has informed the works council.

c. The employer will then discuss with the employers’ association and the trade unions:
   • which measures are being proposed to adjust staffing levels;
   • when the measures will need to be taken;
   • which efforts will be made - with the cooperation of the parties involved - in the areas of training and retraining, transfer, and relocation to avoid compulsory redundancies. Among the matters to be discussed will be measures that could promote relocation within the company or elsewhere, and the way in which these measures can be implemented.

d. The employer will also discuss the measures to be taken with the works council in order to give them the opportunity to put forward their point of view and thus possibly affect the employer’s decision. The employer will inform the Supervisory Board or any comparable policymaking body about the results of these deliberations.

The parties to this collective agreement assume that the trade unions and the works council will be given sufficient opportunity to consult with employees on the measures to be taken and the possible consequences of these for the employees.

6.8.4 Social Plan

a. If the consequences for the employees referred to in 6.8.2 and 6.8.3 are expected, the employer will draw up a social plan in consultation with the trade unions and the employers’ association showing which employee interests should be taken into particular account and what provisions can be made for them.

b. In connection with the social plan, if the trade unions so request, the employer will seek the opinion of semi-governmental unemployment agency UWV WERKbedrijf regarding the opportunities for placing the employees involved. If it is anticipated that the number of redundancies will be such that this will have an impact on the local labour market, the employer will discuss with the trade unions and the employers’ association whether the advice of the Regional Labour Market Council should be sought.
6.9 Temporary employment agencies

6.9.1 NEN certificate

For work to be performed in the Netherlands, the employer will only use a temporary employment agency which:

- holds a valid NEN certificate; and
- is registered with the Dutch Labour Standards Foundation [Stichting Normering Arbeid].

6.10 External employees

a. The employer will not entrust activities which by their nature are normally carried out by employees in the company’s service to external employees or directly or indirectly to contractors or subcontractors without prior consultation with the works council.

b. The company’s general policy on the use of external employees will be discussed with the works council at least twice a year.

c. An 'external employee' is defined for the purpose of this article as a natural person performing work in the company of an employer with whom they have not entered into a contract of employment.

During the consultations referred to in 6.10.1(a) the employer will inform the works council of the following:

- the name and address of the agency or agencies for whom the external employees work and/or the agency or agencies making them available;
- the nature of the work and estimated duration;
- the number of external employees and their names and ages; and
- the conditions of employment for the external employees.

The provisions of this collective agreement with regard to personal minimum monthly earnings, the payment of overtime allowances, shift supplements and the reimbursement of expenses are likewise applicable to temporary agency staff.

If it is established that the total of the terms of employment of the external employees as averaged by job and age are more than 10% above or 10% below that of the comparable company employees in the same salary group, the employer will not use these external employees or will cease to use them unless this difference in terms of employment is reduced, in consultation with the trade unions, to a maximum of 10%. In all cases, the total terms of employment must be at least equal to the total under this collective agreement.

For the purposes of this comparison of terms of employment, the external employees' total income from this work, as calculated over the company's customary payment period, will be taken as the basis. This total income will include all elements which can be expressed in monetary value, however they are described.

For the purposes of this comparison, the average salary of the company's own staff in the salary group - if necessary calculated separately for employees in comparable age categories - will be taken as the basis. The annual income, including all permanent premiums and all permanent bonuses, will be determined and converted according to the company's customary payment period.

Terms of employment include:

a. annual leave entitlement;
b. reimbursement for travelling time, travel costs, 'coffee money', etc;
c. other payments and premiums;
d. the full or partial waiving of social security or old age pension contributions;
e. clear, quantifiable goods issued to the employees involved, such as clothing, shoes and tools;
f. clear, quantifiable provisions for the employees involved, such as pensions and health insurance;
g. payments in the current year linked to profits, as soon as the level of the payment is known.

The provision of 6.10.4 ceases to apply as of 1 January 2014 to employees seconded to the employer with an annual salary, including holiday pay, of €60,000 gross or more.

6.10.7

The provisions of 6.10.2 to 6.10.6 inclusive shall not apply if the employer demonstrates to the works council that one of the following situations applies:

a. this involves contracting work if the work is carried out by staff in the service of the contractor or subcontractor concerned where:
   1. the contractor or subcontractor is liable for the work supplied;
   2. the employees are under the direct supervision and responsibility of the contractor or subcontractor;
   3. the contractor or subcontractor assumes an economic risk with regard to the price, quality, and/or delivery time;

b. staff is being seconded by fellow companies without any profit in mind;

c. supplier’s employees are carrying out work relating to installing, putting into operation, or maintaining a product that has been supplied;

d. use is being made of employees from a labour pool maintained by companies in the Metalektro that has been set up on a not-for-profit basis.

In such a case, the employer shall nevertheless inform the works council of:

• the name and address of the organisation(s) or person(s) for whom the external employees work;
• the nature of the work and estimated duration.
7. About the collective agreement and the parties to the collective agreement

7.1 Term of collective agreement

7.1.1 2018-2020

This collective agreement is effective from 1 June 2018 to 30 November 2020 and will end without notice of cancellation being required.

7.1.2 No ongoing effects of previous collective agreements

Once this collective agreement comes into effect, any rights arising from previous collective agreements will lapse and be replaced by the rights arising from this collective agreement. Where the current collective agreement offers less favourable terms than those of a previous collective agreement, the terms of this collective agreement take precedence.

7.2 Scope

7.2.1 Annex A

The provisions concerning the scope of this collective agreement are set out in Annex A, which forms part of this collective agreement.
7.3 Definitions / Definitions

Additional earnings
This refers to the amount earned by an employee for a period, possibly as a result of a bonus system, over and above the salary agreed for that period. In this context ‘additional earnings’ does not include holiday pay, profit sharing, bonuses and other end-of-year payments, or premiums for overtime, shift work, working conditions or inconvenience of another nature.

Amounts (monetary)
Unless stated otherwise, all monetary amounts referred to in the collective agreement are gross amounts.

Annual salary
This is the salary which the employer and the employee have contractually agreed will be paid at regular intervals, calculated on an annual basis.

Annual earnings
‘Annual earnings’ is the annual salary plus fixed additional earnings or, in the case of fluctuating additional earnings, the average additional earnings received by the employee in the last calendar year.

The annual earnings relate to the number of hours to be worked by the employee in the calendar year, the public holidays recognised in the collective agreement, and the scheduled paid hours off and annual leave that apply for the employee concerned.

Basic Collective Agreement
Collective Agreement in the Metalektro: Basic.

Basic Work Year (BWY)
The Basic Work Year is calculated by taking the number of days in a calendar year and subtracting:
• the number of Saturdays and Sundays;
• the number of days’ annual leave as referred to in 4.1.2(a), and the number of days’ additional annual leave for working a six-day work week as referred to in 4.1.4(a);
• the number of public holidays that do not fall on a Saturday or Sunday; and
• 13 scheduled paid days off (104 scheduled paid hours off), and then multiplying the result by 8 hours.

The following table shows the number of hours in the Basic Work Year for 2018 to 2020.

consult with the trade unions on this matter if the trade unions express a wish to this effect.

3. If the employer applies a different job classification system than the Integrated Job Grading System (ISF system), the following articles - or parts of articles as specified below - do not apply: in 3.1.1(a) the words ‘in one of the salary groups A to K’, 3.1.1(b) and (c), 3.1.2 and 3.1.3, in 3.2.1(a) the words ‘in one of the salary groups A to K’, 3.2.1(b), 3.2.3, 3.2.5, 3.2.6 and 3.3.3, 3.3.1 and 3.3.2, and 3.5.1(a). The provisions of 3.2.5, 3.3.3, 3.3.1 and 3.3.2 apply insofar as is necessary to determine whether the employee has been awarded at least the personal minimum monthly earnings.
Annex B. Rules on dispensation
(as referred to in 22 of Annex A: Scope)

Article 1

2. ROM’s working party on Scope advises ROM on a submitted request for dispensation.

Article 2

1. The working party on Scope comprises one member of ROM representing the employers and one member of ROM representing the employees.
2. The members of the working party on Scope are appointed by ROM.

Article 3

1. A request for dispensation from all or certain provisions of this agreement can be submitted by an employer or a group of employers. It must be apparent from the request whether the request is being submitted on behalf of one or more associations of employees.
2. The request is submitted in writing to the administration office of ROM (P.O. box 407, 2260 AK Leidschendam).
3. The request must at least include:
   a. the name and address of the party submitting the request;
   b. the signature of the party submitting the request;
   c. a detailed description of the nature and extent of the request for dispensation;
   d. the reasons for the request;
   e. the date of submission.

Article 4

1. Upon receipt of the request the administration office of ROM decides within two weeks whether the request can be considered. If necessary the party submitting the request will be given the opportunity to provide additional information regarding the request.
2. A request is dealt with once the information provided is sufficient to enable the request to be assessed.
Article 5

1. The requesting party receives notice that the request is being handled. Once the request has been accepted for consideration the decision on the request takes place within two months.
2. The period referred to in the first paragraph can be extended by two months at the most if, in the opinion of ROM or the working party on Scope, additional information is required to be able to assess the request. The requesting party then has two weeks in which to submit the additional information.

Article 6

1. When presenting its decision, ROM will also provide the reasons for reaching that decision.
2. In considering its decision, ROM assesses whether exceptional circumstances apply or apply temporarily, such as the continuity of the company and/or employment in the company connected with this, on which grounds it would be warranted not to apply this collective agreement or certain provisions of this collective agreement.
3. The ROM administration office will send a written copy of the decision to the requesting party as soon as possible.

Article 7

ROM does not divulge to third parties information concerning any requests for dispensation submitted.

Article 8

ROM will make a decision on any other cases not covered under these Rules on Dispensation.

2. General provisions

2.1. The scheme comes into force on 5 July 2019 and ends on 30 November 2020.

2.2. The Employer must initiate the request of an Employee who meets the conditions specified in 2.3 or 2.4 of this scheme within the term stated in the following table:

<thead>
<tr>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

From January 2020 the implementation term is two months.
The Employer and Employee can jointly agree a different period for initiating the requested Variation.

2.3. An Employee who regularly works shifts* and who is aged 60 or older and who has an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 80/90/100 Variation. The Employer shall grant the request.

* ‘Regular shift work’ is deemed to mean shift work that has been performed over a period of at least one year and which is or must be performed according to a pre-arranged schedule.

2.4. An Employee who does not regularly works shifts and who is aged 62 or older and who has an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 80/90/100 Variation. The Employer shall grant the request.

2.5. An Employee aged 62 or older and who has an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 70/85/100 Variation. The Employer has the option to grant the request or reject it (dual optionality).

2.6. An Employee aged 63 or older - or at a younger age if and as agreed within the company - with an Annual Salary of not more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to apply the 70/85/100 Variation. The Employer shall grant the request.

1 This table only applies to an employee who is entitled to participate in the scheme in accordance with the provisions of 2.3. and 2.4 and therefore not in cases of ‘dual optionality’.
an Annual Salary of more than €70,000 gross may ask the Employer to have one of the Variations applied. The Employer has the option to grant the request or reject it (dual optionality).

2.7. If, at company level, agreements that deviate in a positive sense are made for employees with regard to the age at which the Employee can make use of this Generation Pact, the Pension Administrator and/or Insurer is mandated to implement this from a technical aspect.

3. Participation

3.1. Use of one of the Variations is only possible if the Employee actually works at least three full shifts per week on average. A derogation to this provision may be made if it has a positive effect for the Employee.

3.2. If one of the Variations is used and the Employee is entitled to additional leave for older employees pursuant to 4.1.5 of the Basic Collective Agreement (Transitional scheme for additional annual leave for older employees), the Employee's leave entitlement will be reduced by half; if the Employee is not entitled to this additional leave, this will not be set off in any other way.

3.3. If the Employee participates in the Generation Pact Scheme, the Employer and Employee will agree on the Employee's new work schedule, which should line up as much as possible with the Employee's original work schedule.

3.4. An Employee who opts to use one of the Variations may not initiate any outside occupational activities or extend any the Employee is currently involved in.

3.5. The Employer and Employee may jointly agree that the Variation the Employee has opted for will be changed.

3.6. If the Employee's contracted working hours have been increased less than one year prior to the Employee opting for one of the Variations, the contracted working hours that applied prior to the increase in working hours will be used when applying the Variation.

4. Pensions and occupational disability insurance

4.1. When an Employee opts for one of the Variations, the Employee will participate in the Pension Scheme on the basis of the Employee's Original Part-time Factor and the Pensionable Salary, meaning full pension accrual, cover for death and incapacity for work, and the contributions to be paid remain the same as in the original situation.
4.2. The Employer is entitled to continue deducting the usual pension contributions from the Employee's salary.

4.3. If an Employee opts to use one of the Variations, the Employer must report this to the Pension Administrator/Insurer. In the case of Metalektro Pension Fund (PME), the Employer must report the Employee's participation using the relevant form on the Inzendportaal data submission portal.

5. Benefits

5.1. An Employee who opts to make use of one of the Variations becomes a part-time employee.

5.2. Should an Employee opt to make use of one of the Variations, the percentage of working hours under the Variation is used when calculating time in lieu and/or leave.

For example, when opting for the 80/90/100 Variation, annual leave will accrue over 80% of the original hours.

5.3. Should an Employee opt to make use of one of the Variations, the New Monthly Earnings will be used when calculating pay-based benefits.

For example, when opting for the 80/90/100 Variation, holiday pay will be based on 90% of the original hours.

5.4. For days off, days (hours) remain days (hours), and annual leave that has been or is to be accrued will be paid in cash - if and insofar as applicable and in accordance with the terms of the collective agreement - at the hourly rate of the Original Monthly Earnings plus the increases under the collective agreement and other increases.

6. Other provisions

6.1. An Employee who is already receiving pension benefits in full or in part may not make use of one of the Variations.

6.2. If an Employee makes use of one of the Variations during the term of this scheme, the Variation will remain in effect for the Employee even after the termination of the scheme, until the Employee's participation ends.

6.3. Participation in the scheme ends either on termination of the contract of employment, on the Employee's death, or when the Employer and Employee agree on terminating the Employee's participation in the scheme. Participation also ends on the date that the Employee starts receiving pension benefits (in full or in part).
Annex D. Disputes Regulations
(7.8 Basic Collective Agreement and 7.6 Collective Agreement for Senior Staff)

Article 1

1. The Arbitration Committee (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Committee’) consists of eight members and eight deputy members appointed by the Consultative Council such that, of the members and the deputy members, half are members representing the employers and half are members representing the employees.

2. Members and deputy members are appointed for a period of three years. The Committee as a whole resigns at the end of this period but the members will be eligible for re-appointment.

3. Where a vacancy is filled in the interim, the member appointed to the vacancy will hold the seat for the period which the predecessor would still have held it.

Article 2

1. The Committee has two Chairs appointed by the Committee from among its members, one representing the employers and one representing the employees.

2. The Chairs alternate in this capacity each year, each for one year, with the Chair for the first year being decided by lot. In the absence of the sitting Chair the other will act as Chair.

3. The Committee appoints a Secretary from within or outside its ranks to take the minutes of the Committee meetings. The Chair signs these minutes once they have been approved by the Committee.

4. If the Secretary is not a member of the Committee, he or she will have an advisory function.

5. The approval of the Consultative Council is required for the appointment of a Secretary who is not a member of the Committee.

Article 3

1. A member or deputy member of the Committee who was directly involved in the dispute before it was submitted to the Committee may not participate in the handling of it or in a decision on it.
2. A member or deputy member who participates in the handling of a dispute by the Committee may not associate - either directly or indirectly, orally or in writing - with parties, their trade union or their advisor nor accept any other documents relating to the dispute than documents of the proceedings.

3. A quorum of at least four members of the Committee is required for a legally valid decision on a dispute.

4. The members of the Committee give their verdict without instruction or consultation.

5. At a meeting of the Committee each member casts one vote.

6. The Committee makes its decision on the basis of a simple majority of the votes; blank votes will be deemed to be invalid votes.

7. In the event of a tied vote on a decision, the dispute will be brought up again on the agenda at a meeting to be held within two weeks of that date.

8. If there is again a tied vote, a third meeting will be held within four weeks at which a legal expert designated by the Committee will attend the handling of the dispute; the Chair will apprise this legal expert of the case in good time.

9. If there is a further tie of the votes by the Committee members, the legal expert will decide.

Article 4

1. A dispute is brought before the Committee by means of a written complaint detailing the reason for the dispute and clearly stating the ruling that is being requested from the Committee.

2. A complaint as referred to in Article 4.1 of this Annex may be submitted by the party concerned directly or through the contracting trade union to which the party concerned is affiliated*.

* Before submitting a complaint, it is desirable that the employer or employee consult with the contracting trade union with which that party is affiliated.

3. The dispute will not be accepted for handling by the Committee until the party bringing the complaint demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Chair that he or she seriously attempted to settle the dispute amicably - both by following the procedure in effect at the company, and in consultation with the relevant employers' associations and trade unions.

4. The Committee is also authorised to act on a complaint relating to a dispute involving one or more parties not affiliated to one of the contracting trade unions.
The Committee will only, at its discretion, make use of this power if:

a. the party bringing the complaint pays a fee of €11.34 for costs; and
b. both parties undertake in writing to abide by the provisions of this policy.

Article 5

1. The complaint must be submitted as soon as possible to the Secretary of the Committee and in any case no later than six months after the alleged breach of a provision of the collective agreement occurred.

2. If the complaint relates to a regularly repeated breach or to an ongoing breach, the complaint must be submitted no later than six months after the party submitting the complaint has notified the other party in writing of the alleged breach.

3. The period for which a claim can be made for underpayment of salary can go back no further than eight months counting from the date of the notification referred to in Article 5.2 of this Annex.

4. The deadlines referred to in Articles 5.1 and 5.2 will not be rigorously observed by the Committee however.

5. If the accused party claims that the complaint was not submitted by the prescribed deadline, the Committee can still accept the late submission of the complaint if it considers that there are grounds for doing so, provided that the complaint has been submitted within twelve months of the alleged breach or of the time when the party bringing the complaint informed the other party in writing of the alleged breach.

Article 6

1. The Secretary will inform the Chair immediately when a complaint has been received.

2. If the Chair believes that the case is open to amicable settlement, he or she may summon the parties involved to try to settle the case between them.

Article 7

1. If no attempt at an amicable settlement is made or if this is made and fails, the Secretary will send a copy of the complaint to the accused party and to each of the members of the Committee as soon as possible.

2. The accused party has two months from the date on which the copy of complaint was sent, as stated in Article 7.1, to send a statement of defence with supporting reasons to the Committee Secretary; this deadline will not be rigorously observed by the Committee however.
3. If the party bringing the complaint claims that the statement of defence was not submitted by the prescribed deadline, the Committee can still accept the late submission of the statement of defence if it considers that there are grounds for doing so, provided that the statement of defence has been submitted within three months of the date on which the copy of the complaint was sent, as stated in Article 7.1.

4. The Secretary will send a copy of the statement of defence to the party bringing the complaint and to each of the members of the Committee as soon as possible. The Chair will convene a session of the Committee as soon as possible at a time and place to be determined by the Chair, and will summon the parties involved to appear there. The summons will be sent by registered letter and must be posted no later than the tenth day prior to the day of the session.

5. If the accused party has failed to submit a statement of defence with supporting reasons within three months of the date on which the copy of the complaint was sent to him or her, the Committee may still take a decision, in which case it may decide not to hear the parties as stated in Article 8.1.

Article 8

1. The Committee will hear the parties involved - where they appear at the session - and decide how the case will be further conducted.

2. The parties may bring witnesses or experts to the session and be represented or supported by legal advisors.

3. If a party wishes to bring one or more witnesses and/or experts to the session, that party must inform the Committee Secretary and the other party of the name and address of each witness and/or expert at least three days before the session.

4. The Committee may also call witnesses or experts.

5. Anyone summoned as a party or expert to be heard by the Committee must comply with the summons.

Article 9

1. The Committee will reach its decision fairly and in good faith.

2. In each case, the Committee will state the reasons for its decision.

3. Decisions of the Committee are decisions at the highest instance.
4. The decision of the Committee will have the power of a binding third-party ruling.

5. The Committee is authorised to give an interim decision, in which case, insofar as possible, a deadline for continuing the hearing will be set.

Article 10

Where it emerges that the accused party has failed to comply with one or more commitments set out in the collective agreement, the Committee will instruct the accused party to comply and/or pay damages to the party bringing the complaint.

Article 11

1. The Committee will determine the costs (both those of the Committee and of the parties) arising from the case and will decide how these costs are to be apportioned among the parties.

2. Said costs will not include the cost of any assistance of a legal nature or otherwise to parties.
Annex E. Regulations governing the mediation body (7.9 Basic Collective Agreement and 7.7 Collective Agreement for Senior Staff)

Article 1 – Appointment

1. The Mediation Body comprises eight members:
   - a Chair;
   - a Deputy Chair;
   - three members nominated by employers’ association and trade association FME;
   - three members nominated by the trade unions.

2. Members are appointed for a period of three years, after which time they are eligible for re-appointment.

3. Where a vacancy is filled in the interim, the member appointed to the vacancy will hold the seat for the period which the predecessor would still have held it.

4. A member will automatically be resigned on reaching the age of 72.

5. The secretarial services for the Mediation Body will be provided by the Consultative Council.

Article 2 – Method of operation

1. As soon as a request has been submitted to the Mediation Body, the secretary’s office informs the Chair of the nature and content.

2. The Chair and Deputy Chair consult to determine which of them will serve as acting Chair for the case.

3. Depending on the nature of the request, the acting Chair decides how many and which members will be asked to handle the complaint. In making this choice, the number of members nominated by FME must be the same as the number of members nominated by the trade unions.

4. The number of members dealing with the mediation request, including the Chair, will be three or five, this to be determined by the Chair.
5. If the group selected to deal with a mediation request feel the need to do so, they may present their opinion to the plenary Mediation Body for discussion before notifying the parties.

6. In all cases, the opinion of the group selected shall be the opinion of the Mediation Body.

7. The acting Chair and the members handling the complaint or dispute will be paid an amount to be determined by Consultative Council.

8. All documentation relating to the request will be provided to all members of the Mediation Body for their information.

Article 3 – No arbitration and no publication

1. The Mediation Body cannot act in an arbitration capacity, and therefore cannot be tasked with arbitration with regard to contracts.

2. The Mediation Body can, however, consider a request and give its opinion provided that the parties involved in the dispute agree in advance that they will abide by this decision.

3. The Mediation Body does not divulge to third parties information concerning any complaints it has handled.

Article 4 – Scope of the mediation body

The Mediation Body can be involved in the following situations:

A. Complaints by an employee or group of employees concerning the employment relationship:

1. Employees must first discuss their complaint in the company, following the steps outlined below, with:
   - their direct superior;
   - any higher superior;
   - the management board or its authorised representatives (possibly through the mediation of a member of the works council).

2. If no satisfactory solution has been reached within a reasonable period using the steps stated in Article 4.1, employees who are a member of one of the trade unions may submit their complaint to the representative designated by their organisation, following which the organisation will discuss the complaint with the employer.

3. If no agreement is reached between the organisation and the employer, either the employer or the employee involved may ask their organisation to submit the complaint to the Mediation Body for mediation.

4. If the organisation complies with this request, it informs the other party involved in the mediation request as well as that party's organisation.
5. If one of the parties involved is not a member of the employers’ association or of one of the trade unions, the complaint may be submitted directly to the Mediation Body. The Mediation Body only accepts complaints where both parties and the parties to the collective agreement consent to mediation.

6. If the person bringing the complaint is not a member of one of the trade unions, the Mediation Body will only handle the complaint if said person has stated in advance that he or she is willing to bear the costs of mediation.

B. Difference of opinion between one or more trade unions on the one hand and an employer on the other:
1. If there is a difference of opinion between an employer who is a member of the employers’ association on one side and one or more trade unions on the other regarding social policy within the company, this difference of opinion may be brought by either the employer or the trade union or unions before the executive committees of the employers’ association and trade unions involved.

2. If the intervention referred to in 4(B)(1) above fails to produce a result, each of the organisations may submit the difference of opinion to the Mediation Body for mediation.

3. If the employer involved is not a member of the employer association, the difference of opinion is submitted directly to the Mediation Body.

The Mediation Body will agree to handle the difference of opinion only if the parties to the collective agreement consent to such mediation.

C. The intention by one or more employee unions to strike or engage in other industrial action:
1. If there is a matter which is leading one or more trade unions and/or their members to consider striking or taking industrial action which will hamper the normal operations of the company, this matter may be submitted to the executive committees of the employers’ association and trade unions involved either by the employer(s) who are members of the employers’ association or the trade unions and/or their members.

2. If notification of strike or other industrial action has been given to the employers’ association, one or more trade unions or the employers’ association may request the Mediation Body to mediate and/or give its verdict. The Mediation Body will send a copy of said request without delay to the employer(s) involved, the employers’ association and trade unions, and the Arbitration Committee.
Article 5 – Procedure

1. The Mediation Body will hear:
   a. in the case of complaints by an employee or a group of employees, the employer or employers involved and the trade union or unions that has or have submitted the dispute, and the employers’ association if it has submitted the complaint for mediation;
   b. in the case of a difference of opinion between one or more trade unions on one side and an employer on the other:
      - the employer involved;
      - the employers’ association involved if the employer is a member of such;
      - the trade union or unions involved;
   c. in the case of the intention by one or more trade unions to strike or engage in other industrial action: the employers’ association and the trade union or unions.

2. The Mediation Body may gather all relevant information and hear all persons as witnesses or experts whom it considers desirable. The parties will comply with requests by the Mediation Body to provide information. The parties will encourage the persons whom the Mediation Body wishes to hear as witnesses or experts to comply with a request to that effect.

3. The Mediation Body will attempt to mediate between the parties after having taken cognizance of all the relevant information.

4. If the attempts at mediation have failed to produce any results within two months of the complaint or difference of opinion or the planned industrial action being notified to the Mediation Body, the latter will give its written opinion within two weeks thereafter. Deviations from this period of two months will be permitted in consultation between the Mediation Body and the parties involved.
   In the event of one or more trade unions planning to strike or take other industrial action, the Mediation Body will endeavour to complete the mediation or to give its opinion in writing within four weeks.

5. The Mediation Body will send its written opinion to the parties involved and to the employer’s association if the employer is a member of such. Publication of the opinion is permitted one week after receipt. Publication of an opinion concerning a planned strike or other industrial action by one or more trade unions and/or their members is permitted directly upon receipt. The publication must contain the full opinion of the Mediation Body, except for any passages which the Mediation Body has not released for publication. The names of persons, companies and organisations may be omitted if desired.

Annex G. Additional rules for ISF and/or SAO system

I. – System ownership

The parties have agreed that FME is the owner of the Integrated Job Grading System (ISF system) and the Working Conditions System (SAO system).

The following principles have been adopted in this regard.

1. If the ISF system is applied, company job lists will be drawn up under the guidance of experts from FME.

2. If the SAO system is applied, the lists of working conditions will be drawn up under the guidance of experts from FME.

3. The decision of these experts on the classification of the jobs in the new company job lists will be final. If the trade unions consider it necessary to assess the job lists, that assessment will be carried out exclusively by experts of the trade unions.

4. The classification of the jobs and the working conditions as well as their assessment will be performed exclusively by experts from FME and from the trade unions.

5. The ISF and SAO systems will be monitored by the Salary Structure Committee, appointed by the Consultative Council in the Metalektro (ROM). The Salary Structure Committee will be responsible for:
   - managing the system;
   - supplementing the reference material;
   - handling complaints.

6. The trade unions shall not provide their cooperation with any groups outside the Metalektro wishing to apply the ISF and/or SAO system without consulting and receiving the express consent of FME. That consent will be granted if agreements are made with the groups concerned with respect to:
   - the way in which the system will be used;
   - monitoring the system;
   - maintaining the system.

For its part, FME will inform the trade unions of any proposed application of the system outside the Metalektro.
II. – Agreements on procedure

1. Where the ISF and/or SAO system is being used it will be assumed that:
   - the parties accept the content and consequences of using this or these systems;
   - the reference jobs constitute part of the new system;
   - the number of reference jobs will increase over time and will be added to a list of reference jobs of the ISF and/or SAO system;
   - a brochure will be distributed providing information about the purpose and operation of the system;
   - information will be provided for each company concerning:
     • the duties and responsibilities of the system owner;
     • the purpose and operation of the system;
     • the tasks of any steering group or job grading committee;
     • the complaints procedure.

2. Depending on the situation in a company, the process of using the system may be supervised by a steering group whose members should represent every level of the company. In the interests of efficiency, the size of this steering group should be kept within reasonable limits. The task of the steering group is to oversee the entire process of job grading, i.e. the introduction, implementation, and subsequent maintenance.

An internal grading committee, consisting of internal experts, will have the task of analysing and grading the jobs. Both members of the steering group and internal experts will be trained and receive general supervision by experts from FME.

III. – Classification of the jobs and the working conditions

The procedure for classifying the jobs and working conditions is as follows:
   - The jobs and working conditions in the company are classified in salary groups and increments.
   - The jobs and working conditions and their classification are documented in a company job list, with the jobs and working conditions being divided among the different categories of jobs and working conditions and their classifications to produce a good reference framework.
   - Descriptions of each of the jobs are included in the job list and of each of the working conditions in the working conditions list.
   - When the job description has been formulated it is submitted for verification to the employee or employees concerned and their superiors.
   - Once they have approved the job description the job can be graded.
   - Every job performed by an employee covered by the collective agreements is classified.
   - Employees are notified in writing of the salary group in which their job is classified together with the job description and the reasons for the classification.
- Employees are provided access to the information relating to the jobs in the company job list.
- Employees may at any time ask for the classification to be revised if changes have occurred in the content of the job and/or the working conditions.

IV. – Complaints procedure

In the company the trade unions will be consulted on the method by which employees can lodge an objection to the classification of the job they perform. If an employee appeals against the classification of the job on the basis of the ISF and/or SAO system, the individual concerned will be informed of the outcome and the reasons in writing. If the individual concerned is not satisfied with the outcome of the procedure, the person may refer the matter to their trade union if applicable, in which case an expert from the trade union and an expert from FME will jointly investigate the complaint. On the basis of their investigation the experts will make a binding decision, which will be confirmed in writing. If this decision leads to a classification in a higher salary group the higher salary must be paid from the time that the written complaint was submitted to the company.

V. – Information

The company will provide the trade unions with all information required for the implementation of the ISF and/or SAO system.

COLLECTIVE AGREEMENT IN THE METALEKTRO 2018/2020 SENIOR STAFF (HP)
The parties to this collective agreement

This collective agreement has been agreed between:

1. FME, the Dutch employers’ organisation in the technology industry, hereinafter referred to as the ‘employers’ association’,

and

2. FNV Metaal,
3. CNV Vakmensen,
4. De Unie,
5. VHP2, parties 2 to 5 hereinafter referred to jointly as the ‘trade unions’.

Introduction

1. The parties to this collective agreement intend to eventually merge this agreement with the Collective Agreement in the Metalektro: Basic. The merged version of the collective agreement will specify which provisions apply to which categories of employees.

2. The parties to this collective agreement are consulting on when talks can be scheduled to discuss the matters of integrating the collective agreements, medium-term policy, and 6.3 of the Collective Agreement for Senior Staff.

3. The parties to this collective agreement endorse the principle that women and men with the same level of relevant education/training and experience should receive equal pay for performing the same job.

4. To stimulate the entry of sufficient numbers of high-quality employees, students are being trained within the Metalektro on the basis of an apprenticeship contract (professional practical skills course of study: BBL). This learning pathway includes practical, on-the-job training, which must be a close fit with the requirements the student will be expected to meet once employed. It goes without saying that the intention is not to use the practical component to address fluctuations in the supply of work.

5. At company level, the employer and the trade unions may hold talks on all aspects of employment.

6. The parties to this collective agreement consider it important that companies in the Metalektro have properly qualified employees at their disposal and, accordingly, advise the companies to devote attention to their career and skills development policy. Such a policy can help ensure the best possible alignment of employees’ capabilities with the needs of the business.

7. The parties recommend that extra attention be devoted at corporate level to:
   • the development of an integrated policy on older employees, i.e.:
     - issues faced by older employees, particularly age, family, and health-related issues;
     - related to this, providing suitable opportunities for the career development and further training of older employees, like enabling them to avail themselves of the courses offered by Stichting A+O Metalektro for example;
   • issues faced by occupationally disabled and foreign employees.
8. The parties to this collective agreement regard sickness absence as a continuing cause for concern. They believe that sickness absence that arises from the work should, in first instance, be addressed at company level. To this end, they recommend that the company develop a prevention policy.

9. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that overtime be kept to a minimum where possible.

10. The parties to this collective agreement are committed to promoting an ‘à la carte conditions of employment plan’ within the company.

11. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that employers and employees do all they can to avoid conflicts arising from questions of conscience, for example by jointly discussing the matter concerned as soon as possible after the employee has reported the situation giving rise to his or her objection on the basis of conscience.

12. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that companies, in consultation with the works council, draw up a complaints procedure and that this include the provision that an employee may choose a person to represent him or her. Once the complaint has been handled through the company procedure, it can still be brought before the trade union for resolution.

13. The parties to this collective agreement recommend that attention be paid in the company to the impact the production process has on the environment and that the company introduce an in-house environmental management system.

1.3 Prior work under contract with an employment agency

1.3.1 Only one fixed term contract of employment

Contrary to the provisions of Article 7:668(a) of the Dutch Civil Code, consecutive contracts of employment via a temporary employment agency will be deemed to be a single fixed term contract of employment where the conditions stated under 1.3.2 are met.

1.3.2 Conditions

The provision stated under 1.3.1 applies to an employee:

a. who worked as an agency worker for the employer directly prior to entering employment with this employer under a contract of employment; and

b. who became ill while being employed by the temporary employment agency; and

c. whose contract with the temporary employment agency was terminated strictly due to the employee’s sickness; and

d. who, after recovering from the sickness, signed a new contract with the temporary employment agency; and

1.4 Changes to the contracted working hours

Indentical to 1.3 of the Basic CA

1.5 Full-time and part-time work

1.5.1 General rule

1.5.2 Exceptions

Contrary to the provision of 1.5.1, provisions of the collective agreement regarding the following apply equally to full-time and part-time employees:
   a. short periods of absence (4.4); and
   b. special leave for employees who are union members (4.6).

3.1.1 Job classification systems

a. If the employer decides to use a job classification system to group jobs, the employer will use the Integrated Job Grading System (ISF system) as set out in the Basic Collective Agreement.

b. The employer may only use a different job classification system if the employers’ association and the trade unions agree to this; the same applies for changes to the system that is in use or the introduction of a new system.

c. If the employer opts to use the ISF system, the employer will comply with the provisions of the Basic Collective Agreement concerning this system. For senior staff, the group thresholds shown in the table below apply.

3.2 Salary adjustments during term of this collective agreement

3.2.1 Upper threshold

a. The pay rises specified in 3.2.2 only apply to employees whose combined annual salary and holiday pay does not exceed a given upper threshold. The upper threshold shown is a gross amount and applicable to an employee working full time.

b. This upper threshold will be indexed with the basic pay rises as stated in 3.2.2. As of 1 January 2018 the upper threshold is €96,486.

c. To determine whether the employee's income is below or above the upper threshold, the following calculation is made:

- the gross monthly salary - not including the pay rise - in the month in which, according to the table, the pay rise takes place is used as the basis;
- this amount is multiplied by 12.96. If the resulting amount is lower than the upper threshold, the employee is entitled to the pay rise specified in 3.2.2.

3.2.2 Pay rises

The table below shows on which dates and by how much the employee's actual salary will be increased; this applies only if the combined annual salary and holiday pay is lower than the upper threshold shown in the next table for that rise.

a. An employee who received holiday pay prior to 31 December 1984 will continue to receive such after that date.
b. Holiday pay amounting to 8% annually is accrued between 1 July and 30 June each year.
c. The implementation of this provision will not result in an increase in the employee’s entitlements.

Identical to 3.7.8 of the Basic CA

3.4 Paid sick leave and incapacity for work

3.4.1 Continued payment of wages and top-up a. During the first 52 weeks that an employee is incapacitated for work and is not entitled to benefit under the Sickness Benefits Act, the employer will top up the wage prescribed by law; this top-up is equal to the difference between the wage prescribed by law and 100% of the full daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act.¹

3.4.2 Deviations

c. In consultation with the works council, the employer may draw up a policy stating how an employee is to act while on sick leave. If this policy includes sanctions for employees who contravene the sickness absence monitoring regulations, the employer may impose these sanctions, in which case the employer may derogate from the provisions of 3.4 stated above.

3.4.3 Daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act

b. If the employee’s working hours are increased or reduced during the reference period that applies for establishing the Sickness Benefits Act daily wage, a notional Sickness Benefits Act daily wage will apply for the purposes of applying the provisions of 3.4.1(a) and (c) and 3.4.4(b). That notional Sickness Benefits Act daily wage will be equal to the Sickness Benefits Act daily wage that would have applied if the employee’s working hours during the entire reference period had been the working hours that applied at the time when the incapacity for work commenced.

3.4.4 Vocational rehabilitation for employees declared partially incapacitated for work

3.4.5 Differentiated WGA premium: recovery option

3.4.6 WGA gap insurance

a. With effect from 1 January 2009, the employer is obliged to offer the employee a WGA gap insurance under the Resumption of Work (Partially Disabled Persons) Regulations (WGA) to cover the financial risk of incapacity for work of at least 35% but less than 80%. This insurance entitles the employee to claim a regularly paid benefit to supplement the WGA follow-up benefit until they reach Dutch state retirement age. The amount of the benefit is equal to 70% of the Sickness Benefits Act daily wage, up to the maximum daily wage pursuant to the Sickness Benefits Act, multiplied by the percentage of incapacity for work and less the WGA follow-up benefit.

3.4.7 WIA lower threshold insurance

Notes to 3.4.7

A WIA lower threshold insurance has been provided in the industry since 1 January 2009. Employees have the option of joining this scheme. The WIA lower threshold insurance covers the financial risk in the event of incapacity for work of between 15% to 35% (i.e. the lower threshold). This insurance provides the employee with a regular benefit equal to 100% of the daily wage under the Sickness Benefits Act, up to the daily wage pursuant to the Sickness Benefits Act, multiplied by the percentage of incapacity for work during a specified period (Sickness Benefits Act daily wage: see 3.4.3).

2 WIA is the Dutch initialism for the Work and Income (Capacity for Work) Act.

a. If the employee is entitled to benefit under the Unemployment Insurance Act because the employer is not or is no longer obliged to pay the salary under the provisions of 3.5.1, 3.5.2 or 3.5.3, the employer will top up this benefit to the level of the salary.

b. In the cases as referred to in 3.5.2 and 3.5.3, the employer will continue to pay the salary of an employee who is not entitled to benefit on account of the conditions laid down in Articles 15 to 21 inclusive of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

b. Public holidays are not deducted from the annual leave entitlement.
4.2 Scheduled paid hours off

Please note: This clause is identical to 4.2 of the Basic CA: the text is included below only where references deviate.

4.2.1 Number of scheduled paid hours off

a. The employee accrues scheduled paid hours off - i.e. time during which the employee is scheduled to work but is given time off with pay - in proportion to the length of time he or she has been employed with the company in that calendar year. An employee whose contracted working hours are the same as the Basic Work Year is entitled to 104 scheduled paid hours off.

[b to d]

4.2.2 Designating time as scheduled paid hours off

a. For an employee working part time, the number of scheduled paid hours off will be calculated based on the number of hours the employee works in a calendar year in proportion to the BWY.

4.2.3 Compensation for unused scheduled paid hours off

a. The employer will allow the employee time off in lieu for any unused scheduled hours off the employee has accrued. In consultation with the employee, the employer may also pay out these hours in cash.

b. If time in lieu is given for unused scheduled paid hours off, in consultation with the employee the employer will decide when time off may be taken. As a guideline the time off will be taken:
   • at a time when the operational situation allows for this; and
   • when the employee would normally be scheduled to work; and
   • in periods of at least half working days; and • preferably within the same quarter in which the scheduled paid hours off were accrued.

c. Any accrued scheduled paid hours off which have not been taken or offset by time in lieu by the end of the calendar year will be carried over to the next calendar year, during which year the employee can take an equivalent amount of time off. The employer may, in consultation with the employee, also pay out half of the remaining hours, with the employee taking time in lieu for the other half the following calendar year.

b. This does not apply to:
   • days or time the employer has scheduled as the personal annual leave as requested by the employee;

Indentical to 6.9 of the Basic CA
6.8 External employees / External employees

Please note: This clause is identical to 6.10 of the Basic CA: the text is included below only where references deviate.

6.8.1

a. The employer will not entrust activities which by their nature are normally carried out by employees in the company’s service to external employees or directly or indirectly to contractors or subcontractors without prior consultation with the works council.

b. The company’s general policy on the use of external employees will be discussed with the works council at least twice a year.

c. An ‘external employee’ is defined for the purpose of this article as a natural person performing work in the company of an employer with whom they have not entered into a contract of employment.

6.8.2

During the consultations referred to in 6.8.1(a) the employer will inform the works council of the following:

- the name and address of the agency or agencies for whom the external employees work and/or the agency or agencies making them available;
- the nature of the work and estimated duration;
- the number of external employees and their names and ages; and
- the conditions of employment for the external employees.

6.8.3

The provisions of this collective agreement with regard to personal minimum monthly earnings, the payment of overtime allowances, shift supplements, and the reimbursement of expenses are likewise applicable to temporary agency staff.

6.8.4

If it is established that the total of the terms of employment of the external employees as averaged by job and age are more than 10% above or 10% below that of the comparable company employees in the same salary group, the employer will not use these external employees or will cease to use them unless this difference in terms of employment is reduced, in consultation with the trade unions, to a maximum of 10%. In all cases, the total terms of employment must be at least equal to the total under this collective agreement.

For the purposes of this comparison of terms of employment, the external employees’ total income from this work, as calculated over the company’s customary payment period, will be taken as the basis. This total income will include all elements which can be expressed in monetary value, however these are described.
For the purposes of this comparison, the average salary of the company’s own staff in the salary group - if necessary calculated separately for employees in comparable age categories - will be taken as the basis. The annual income, including all permanent premiums and all permanent bonuses, will be determined and converted according to the company’s customary payment period.

Terms of employment include:

a. annual leave entitlement;

b. reimbursement for travelling time, travel costs, ‘coffee money’, etc;

c. other payments and premiums;

d. the full or partial waiving of social security or old age pension contributions;

e. clear, quantifiable goods issued to the employees involved, such as clothing, shoes, and tools;

f. clear, quantifiable provisions for the employees involved, such as pensions and health insurance;

g. payments in the current year linked to profits, as soon as the level of the payment is known.

The provision of 6.8.4 ceases to apply as of 1 January 2014 to employees seconded to the employer with an annual salary, including holiday pay, of €60,000 gross or more.

The provisions of 6.8.2 to 6.8.6 inclusive shall not apply if the employer demonstrates to the works council that one of the following situations applies:

a. this involves contracting work if the work is carried out by staff in the service of the contractor or subcontractor concerned where:

   1. the contractor or subcontractor is liable for the work supplied;

   2. the employees are under the direct supervision and responsibility of the contractor or subcontractor;

   3. the contractor or subcontractor assumes an economic risk with regard to the price, quality, and/or delivery time;

b. staff is being seconded by fellow companies without any profit in mind;

c. supplier’s employees are carrying out work relating to installing, putting into operation, or maintaining a product that has been supplied;

d. use is being made of employees from a labour pool maintained by companies in the Metalektro that has been set up on a not-for-profit basis

In such a case, the employer shall nevertheless inform the works council of:

- the name and address of the organisation(s) or person(s) for whom the external employees work;

- the nature of the work and estimated duration.

Annex

Annex A. Scope forming part of this collective agreement

1. This collective agreement applies to the contracts of employment of employees in the service of an employer in a company in the Metalektro.

2. A company that carries out any of the activities stated in 6 and 7 below comes within the scope of this collective agreement if the company primarily carries out activities in the Metalektro.

3. Whether the company primarily carries out activities in the Metalektro is determined based on the number of working hours employees in that company spend performing those activities. In this context, ‘primarily’ means that the activities account for more than 50% of the contracted working hours of all employees in the company’s service.

4. Metalektro activities include both the specific activities referred to in 6 and 7 and the activities of employees who, in a supporting position or other position, including positions deemed to come under overhead, are working for the benefit of the specific activities referred to in 6 and 7.

5. With regard to employees in a support position or other position, including positions deemed to come under overhead, who are working for the benefit of Metalektro activities as well as for other activities in the company, the number of working hours of these employees will be allocated proportionally to the various activities in the company.

6. With the exception of those specified in 7 and 8 below, the ‘Metalektro’ is considered to include companies in which, with due account of normal working hours prevailing in the branch of industry, during at least 1200 hours per week activities are performed by employees in the company’s service as defined in 7.3 of this collective agreement*—however with due observance of the provisions of 9 to 18 (inclusive) and 22—and in which:

Parties to the collective agreement

This collective agreement has been agreed between:

1. FME, the Dutch employers’ organisation in the technology industry, hereinafter referred to as the ‘employers’ association’, and
2. FNV Metaal,
3. CNV Vakmensen,
4. De Unie,

   parties 2 to 5 inclusive jointly referred to as the ‘trade unions’ Introduction

Lifelong learning

- The parties to the collective agreement firmly believe that lifelong learning is essential in every business and for every employee in the Metalektro.
- Lifelong learning helps ensure the company’s long-term viability, offers opportunities to proactively respond to developments in technology, the labour market, and in the global economy, and advances the personal development of the employees.
- Companies carry a portion of the responsibility for lifelong learning, as do the employees, and a community of purpose between the employer and employee is essential in this, as is a structured, future-oriented training policy with a focus on long-term, sustainable employability.

Labour Market Policy and Vocational Training

- By drawing up this Collective Agreement on Labour Market Policy and Vocational Training, the parties to the collective agreement aim to make a contribution by:
  - providing companies and employees with information on vocational training, employability, and the labour market; and
  - providing subsidies to employers with the aim of promoting vocational training and education.

b. A+O Metalektro carries out its work within the scope of this collective agreement, in accordance with its articles of association, and with due observance of the provisions of the ‘Financing scheme for courses followed by apprentices and employees’ as set out in Annex C to this collective agreement. The articles of association of A+O Metalektro form part of this collective agreement.

c. The Consultative Council in the Metalektro. [Stichting Raad van Overleg in de Metalektro], hereinafter referred to by its Dutch initialism ‘ROM’, is authorised to carry out the tasks assigned to it under this collective agreement.

d. The Board of Trustees of A+O Metalektro may deviate from the provisions of the financing scheme as set out in Annex C to this collective agreement if:
   - exceptional circumstances make it appropriate to do so; and
   - If ROM advises to do so.
2. A+O Metalektro contribution

2.1 Employer contribution

a. The employer must pay A+O Metalektro a contribution, which in 2019 and 2020 is 0.2% of the wage bill for the company in that year under the Social Insurance (Funding) Act.

b. Said wage bill refers to the total wages as defined in Article 16 of the Social Insurance (Funding) Act [Wet financiering sociale verzekeringen; Wfsv].

c. ROM collects the employer's contribution and determines the date of billing.

2.2 Advance

a. The employer is obliged to pay an advance on its contribution.

b. The employer must pay this by the deadline set by ROM; this will in any case be no later than by 15 October each year.

c. ROM will determine the amount of the advance on the basis of a reasonable estimate of the company's wage bill under the Social Insurance (Funding) Act. ROM collects the advance.

d. The final settlement will be made by no later than 15 August of the following year.

2.3 Obligation to provide information

The employer is obliged to provide ROM with the information it needs to calculate the advance and contribution.

2.4 Late or non-payment

a. If the employer does not pay its contribution or advance on time, the then current statutory interest on the amount owing will be charged from the date that payment of the contribution or advance is due.

b. The employer will not receive any reimbursements from A+O Metalektro until the overdue advance or contribution has been paid.
3. About this collective agreement

3.1 Term, and relationship with previous collective agreements

a. This collective agreement is effective from 1 January 2019 to 30 June 2021 and will end without notice of cancellation being required.
b. Once this collective agreement comes into effect, any rights arising from previous collective agreements will lapse and be replaced by the rights arising from this collective agreement. Where the current collective agreement offers less favourable terms than those of a previous collective agreement, the terms of this collective agreement take precedence.
